

Senate brawl; bloody Marks left on floor

By BOB SCHMIDT
From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Two Republican state senators carried a disagreement from the upper-house chambers into an adjoining lounge Friday, and became embroiled in a fist-swinging brawl which wound up with San Francisco's Milton Marks pinned to the floor with a bloody lip.

No other senators witnessed the fight between Marks and H. L. Richardson of Arcadia, but several lawmakers were present when the pair staged a brief verbal rematch in another room moments later.

Both senators were initially reluctant to discuss the matter, but Richardson finally said, in a telephone interview, "He mouthed off a bit and got a little vulgar, and I popped him."

Marks had said only, at first, that "It was a conversation and it led to something that wasn't just conversation," but he elaborated after learning that Richardson had given details of the incident.

The stocky, 45-year-old Richardson said the disagreement started when he objected to a parliamentary maneuver being used by Marks, a 52-year-old former municipal court judge, to have a bill scheduled for a vote next week.

Richardson said he went to Mark's desk in the Senate chamber and told him he was "shoving everyone else back on their bills, (and) I was objecting to that."

"He called me a name at that time, an ass. I came back to my seat, Milt followed, and said it again."

"I said 'look Milt, I advise you not to do that. You're going to wind up with your teeth all over the floor.'"

At Marks' request, he said, the two men moved from the chamber to a lounge across a corridor.

"He said he wanted to discuss this thing and I said I didn't want to discuss (it) and I said 'I think you're being pushy.'"

"He called me a narrow-minded bastard," and

One of trio too ill for tests Gravity has spacemen reeling

ABQARD USS TICONDEROGA — The Skylab astronauts, completing in triumph a mission that started with threatened failure, returned to earth Friday from the longest space voyage ever. Doctors said they suffered lingering effects of dizziness and nausea.

Doctors said astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Paul V. Weitz and Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin all experienced shakiness and other symptoms for several hours after returning from their record 28-day space mission.

Dr. W. Royce Hawkins, the astronauts' chief physician, said that Kerwin and Weitz both experienced nausea, with Kerwin actually vomiting, after they were taken to a medical laboratory aboard this carrier for medical tests.

He emphasized, however, that the symptoms did not indicate any permanent health effects on the spacemen.

Conrad, said Hawkins, snapped back within two hours and was able to move around freely, showing little effects from the long exposure to weightlessness.

Hawkins attributed the symptoms to the astronauts' reintroduction to gravity after living for four weeks in zero gravity.

Kerwin, said the doctor, "has not recovered as well as the other two crewmen."

"He is really slower (recovering) than any (astronaut) we've seen," he said.

Hawkins said Kerwin was unable to complete a medical test which puts stress on the cardiovascular system by applying negative pressures on the lower legs. He also said that it was decided to not permit Kerwin to try a bicycle exercise experiment.

The astronaut was helped to bed, the doctor said, shortly after the tests.

Weitz, said Hawkins, recovered fairly well after seven to eight hours.

The space physician said there are doubts that

Kerwin will be able to accept a presidential invitation to visit the California White House in San Clemente on Sunday.

"I cannot say Joe will be ready that quick," said Hawkins.

Conrad and Weitz, he said, probably could make the trip, "but it's too early to say that any of them will be able to go."

Filmland hits 'censorship'

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

"Disaster" ... "Denial of civil liberties" ... "A terrible throwback" ...

These were some of the reactions among film makers to the Supreme Court's decision granting more discretion to local courts and law agencies in determining what is considered obscene. Thursday's 5-4 decision was aimed at producers of pornography, but the film establishment fears that the ruling will hurt the industry as a whole.

Leaders of the three creative guilds — actors, directors, writers — foresaw immense troubles for the industry if local boards of censorship are established throughout the country. The court decided that obscenity could be judged on local, not national standards.

Industry figures feared that dozens of versions of the same film would be required to satisfy local standards. Others believed the ruling would force film makers to be less adventuresome in dealing with censorable subjects.

"No matter what you call it, it's censorship," said director Mark Robson ("Peyton Place," "Valley of the Dolls").

"THE DECISION is a denial of civil liberties. I hold no brief for hard-core porno, but I feel the individual should be given a freedom of choice that is very broad. Censorship of books and films could lead to censorship of social and political thought."

A spokesman for the Writers Guild of America commented, "We abhor the decision, but since it's the law of the land, we'll have to abide by it."

"We took a position on the California (obscenity) initiative last November that our members should vote no on any proposal to establish local censor boards. Under such a plan local vigilantes can prohibit the showing of a recognized classic like 'A Clockwork Orange.'"

Chester L. Migden, national executive secretary of the Screen Actors Guild remarked: "We think the Supreme Court decision will pose very, very substantial and difficult problems for any industry such as ours which must distribute its product on a national basis. I can envision countless lawsuits as a result of this decision."

Producer-director Robert Aldrich ("The Dirty Dozen") termed the decision "a disaster." He placed the blame on the Producers Association for "not educating the public on the difference between X-rated and 'dirty.'"

Said Aldrich: "The housewife in Chillicothe, Ill., can't tell the difference between 'Deep Throat' and 'Midnight Cowboy.' The code administration simply hasn't informed the public on the fact that the X-rating can be applied to distinguished films."

Rating code administrator Aaron Stern declined comment on the Supreme Court decision.

Director Robert Wise ("West Side Story," "The Sound of Music"), president of the Directors Guild of America, remarked, "I haven't read the entire decision, but it appears to be a terrible blow against the basic constitutional rights of every individual."

"AS FAR as it relates to the film industry, the decision seems to be a terrible throwback to the dark days of local censorship. The Directors Guild will redouble its efforts to fight the Administration's antiobscenity bill now before Congress."

Raging brush fire guts 7 homes in Palos Verdes

By MIKE JELF
Staff Writer

Flames whipped by 30 mile per hour winds swept across the steep, southern side of the Palos Verdes Peninsula Friday, destroying seven houses, damaging six others and blackening 200 acres.

More than 230 men from the Los Angeles County Fire Department battled the blaze late into Friday night, and fire officials said the blaze was "nearly contained."

"The fire's not running anywhere," Fire Department Information Officer Dick Friend said, "but with winds like this and burning embers all around, we're not going to say it's contained."

Mop up operations will take two or three days.

Cause of the fire was not known, Friend said, but would be investigated starting this morning. Only minor injuries resulted from the blaze.

The fire broke out about 2:15 p.m. near an abandoned Army Nike missile site at Crenshaw Boulevard and Whitley Collins Drive, near the crest of the peninsula.

It quickly spread south toward Portuguese Bend and then shifted east toward Rolling Hills, Friend said.

County firemen responded with 20 engines and four borate-dropping helicopters. They were assisted by six crews from the Los Angeles City Fire Department. About 200 teen-agers in the fire area lent firemen a hand by hacking at brush with hoes and shoveling soil onto small fires.

Some fire rigs were delayed in reaching the fire, Friend said, because of the narrow, twisting roads in the fire area.

"Some of the people don't want to get out until the last minute, when we're trying to get our trucks in," he said.

The area in Rolling

Hills where the houses were destroyed hasn't been burned over for 25 years, Friend said, and the brush had grown up to a height of seven or eight feet.

All the destroyed houses had wooden shake shingle roofs, he added. Value of the destroyed houses was set in the $150,000 range by fire department estimates.

A heavy pall of smoke from the fire blanketed large parts of the Southland sky, and fire department switchboards were swamped with calls.

Thick smoke also made

Touring summit flies West

SAN CLEMENTE — President Nixon and Soviet Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev carried their summit across America Friday after signing an agreement to try to avert the danger of nuclear war.

Enroute from Washington to California, the President's jet dipped low over the spectacular canyons and deserts of the Western United States. Brezhnev gave an impromptu imitation of an "Old West" gunfighter.

During the five-hour flight, the two leaders also discussed the communique to be issued on Monday when Brezhnev leaves the United States after a week of summit talks.

Presidential assistant Henry A. Kissinger said the document was "nine-tenths complete." He said it would range over improved U.S. - Soviet relations as well as European issues and Vietnam.

In the new nuclear agreement they signed in Washington, they pledged joint efforts and "urgent consultations" to deflect the risk of wars and nuclear disaster.

In a reference aimed apparently at Communist China, the United States and the Soviet Union also agreed to work together when any third country acts to "endanger international peace and security."

The two world leaders signed the pact, the eighth in their current round of summit talks, in the White House East Room.

Three years ago the Soviet Union tried but failed to convince the United States that it should stand shoulder-to-shoulder with Moscow to guard against Communist Chinese military thrusts. Henry A. Kissinger, the President's national security adviser, said the "practical effect" of this new two-nation pact "would be to prevent the outbreak of hostilities against any other country."

Kissinger, in briefing newsmen, was asked specifically about application to China. He skirted the subject somewhat, while also saying: "We have no intention of being an arbiter between the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China."

However, he said at another point, "Clearly under this agreement the use of force against another country which would have wide repercussions would be precluded."

Haig serving as Nixon aide illegally

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Comptroller General has concluded that Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. is violating a federal law by remaining on active military duty while serving as a White House aide to President Nixon. "It is now our view that a violation of the statute is indicated," said Elmer B. Staats, who as comptroller general heads the Government Accounting Office. The statute involved is one designed to prevent the military from exerting too strong an influence over the civilian affairs of the federal government. Haig, who is still chief of staff of the Army, was appointed as head of the White House staff by President Nixon early last month. He plans to remain on active military duty and to receive his full military salary until Aug. 1.

Yablonski retrial asked

ERIE, Pa. — The defense attorney for Albert Pass, convicted of financing the 1969 Yablonski murders, filed an appeal for a new trial Friday on grounds the presiding judge made 38 errors that prevented the defense from establishing its case.

Attorney Harold Gondelman, in a 20-page brief, said Erie County Judge Edward Carney erred in not demanding the appearance of a witness who allegedly could have testified to plea bargaining by the prosecution and a judge who tried two previous Yablonski trials. Pass, 53, Tuesday became the highest United Mine Workers official convicted in the shooting deaths of UMW insurgent Joseph "Jock" Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

Ecology rules criticized

WASHINGTON — The chairman of the Federal Power Commission said Friday that environmental standards must be relaxed if this nation is to take advantage of its domestic energy reserves. Chairman John Nassikas suggested a lessening of environmental air, water and land use standards. The committee is holding hearings on a proposed National Energy Research and Development Policy Act which would establish a national program for research, development and demonstration in fuels and energy. It would also create a development corporation to carry out much of the research.

60% pass car-smog test

CHICAGO — Nearly 17,000 cars have been tested for auto emissions during the first 20 days of a unique city program, and most passed the computerized pollution checkup. Officials say about 60 per cent of the cars met the standards for carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons while 35 per cent failed. Another 5 per cent of the cars were not testable because of faulty mufflers or other defects which prevented the equipment from being attached.

Police seize 31 in Paris riots

PARIS — Police raided the offices of two extremist political factions Friday, arresting 31 persons and seizing weapons similar to those used in riots between left and right-wing youths Thursday night. Doctors fought to save the lives of two police officers who suffered burns from fire bombs in street fighting that injured a total of 76 officers. Police seized Molotov cocktails, ax handles and iron bars at the offices of the Trotskyist Communist League and arrested 25 persons there. At the headquarters of the extreme right-wing Ordre Nouveau, officers found billy-clubs and iron bars and arrested six persons.

Oil pay ultimatum

CARACAS, Venezuela — U.S. and other foreign oil companies in Venezuela were given an ultimatum Friday to meet terms demanded by the nation's 20,000-man oil industry work force by next Tuesday or face a stoppage and a possible general strike. The Venezuelan oil industry, world's third largest oil exporter, is one of the key suppliers of U.S. oil imports, shipping almost 2.5 million barrels per day to the U.S. East Coast in 1972. Increases demanded by oil workers would make the total package range from $45 million to $55 million to cover 19,500 workers directly employed by the companies, as well as around 4,000 contract workers.

Fatal jet off course

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico — The Mexican jetliner which crashed on a mountain slope last Wednesday night, killing all 27 persons aboard, was off course when it began a landing approach into the Pacific Coast resort city, aviation authorities said Friday. As rescue workers, hampered by bad weather and dense underbrush, struggled to bring down the last of the bodies, an official investigation into the tragedy continued. Fourteen Americans, most of them bound for a Mexican holiday, were among the 23 passengers. The Aero-Mexico DC9 carried a Mexican crew of four.

Mideast peace offer

CAIRO — Egypt offered Friday to negotiate a Middle East settlement with Israel in the presence of United Nations officials, but only if the Israelis first withdraw from all Arab territory they now occupy. The announcement signified a change in the position Egypt has maintained since the 1967 Middle East War of conducting no direct negotiations with Israel under any circumstances. The Egyptian announcement was in the form of a reply to an offer made Thursday by Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban to meet with the Egyptian foreign minister in the presence of the U.N. Mideast peace mediator without setting any prior conditions.

Pope appeals for unity

VATICAN CITY — Pope Paul VI, reviewing his 10 years of reign, said Friday the Roman Catholic Church must overcome "division, misunderstandings and mutual suspicions" between its liberal and conservative wings to live up to the challenge of a troubled time. In a 4,700-word speech, the pontiff also told cardinals and Vatican prelates that faith in God and the idealism of young people were the two things that kept him from despairing about the future of the world. In a far-ranging address the Pope also said that despite many disappointments the Vatican intended to continue its efforts for world peace, and would participate in the forthcoming European security conference in Helsinki.

Nixon seen ready to name 'energy czar'

Combined News Services

John A. Love, three-term governor of Colorado, will be named federal "energy czar," according to administration and oil industry officials in Washington.

Love, a Republican, would move into the White House almost immediately to advise President Nixon. Then, if a new department of Energy and Natural Resources that Nixon plans to propose is approved by congress, Love would become a member of the Cabinet, a ranking administration official said.

Both the appointment and the request for a new Cabinet department will be announced Tuesday, according to sources in the oil industry. Nixon proposed a Department of Natural Resources in 1971, but the idea never came to fruition.

One of the first questions that would face Love would be the possibility of a system of gasoline rationing.

The 56-year-old governor would, in effect, supplant a rather cumbersome executive department apparatus that has been concerned with the energy crisis during the last year or so.

He reportedly would take over many of the duties now assigned to William Simon, deputy secretary of the Treasury, as well as those of Charles Dabona, who serves on the White House staff. In addition, the three-man energy advisory panel would presumably be disbanded. It includes Henry Kissinger, Nixon's adviser on national security, and Treasury Secretary George Shultz; its third member, John Ehrlichman, Nixon's chief domestic-policy adviser, resigned in the Watergate scandal.

Love had been considered earlier this year for the still-vacant position of secretary of the Air Force.

New duty

Working with such celebrities as Martha Raye, Charlton Heston and Nancy Sinatra, the USO will soon begin a national program of shows at hundreds of veterans and military hospitals, it was disclosed Friday in Salt Lake City, Utah.

"It's something we've never done before," USO director of shows Jimmy Sheldon said.

Sheldon said the USO — "busier than ever even though the Vietnam war ended" — plans a regular schedule of shows at 165 Veterans Administration hospitals and hundreds of military facilities.

Sheldon, a onetime entertainer picked to run the USO in May, said the hospital program was being undertaken in collaboration with a Hollywood group headed by cartoonist Walter Lantz and including Miss Raye and Miss Sinatra, Heston, Gov. Reagan of California and many other celebrities working strictly on a volunteer basis.

On an island hideaway in the northern Adriatic, Yugoslavia's President Tito indulges in a hobby of gardening and growing bushes, grapevines and fruit trees.

He got a chance to show them off Friday to Belgium's King Baudoin and Queen Fabiola, who are touring Yugoslavia. He also took them to his cellar of vintage wines.

Tito was especially proud of several fangerine trees, which are bearing fruit. He explained that hitherto it had been considered unlikely that such trees could survive the climate.

Undeterred

Undeterred by charges of plagiarism from rivals, Norman Mailer and his British and American publishers went ahead Friday with plans to release a biography of the late film star Marilyn Monroe written by the Pulitzer-winning author.

"There is one truth that does not alter worldwide, and that is that we have written permission to use the material," said Howard Roth of Grosset and Dunlap, which will publish the book in New York.

Mark Goulden, chairman of W. H. Allen, which published earlier books about Miss Monroe by Frederick Guiles and Maurice Zolotow in England, charged that Mailer had "lifted" whole sections from the Guiles and Zolotow books.

Transformer acts up, tenant puts foot down

Dozens of disgruntled neighbors stood outside the Beltsville, Md., apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Pierce, complaining about the darkness and heat.

"Some people want to bash the door in," one man said.

The neighbors were upset because the couple allowed some 500 tenants of the Powder Mill apartments to go without electric power for 12 hours Thursday.

Mrs. Pierce explained Friday:

"It happens every summer and it happened again yesterday, but we told them we weren't going to stand for it this time. I told them they weren't going to come in and tear up my house anymore."

The only access to a 3,000-pound electrical transformer knocked out by a thunderstorm is through the couple's living room.

"It's the third time in two years this has happened. It happens almost every time it lights. They come in here and saw a big 5-by-8-foot hole in our wall and drag that tremendous thing through my living room," she said.

The apartment management had promised to construct a new access to the transformer but failed to do so, Mrs. Pierce said.

So the couple decided they wouldn't let the electricians through the door. The response from the neighbors was not sympathetic.

The Pierces held out until shortly before midnight Thursday, when the apartment management signed a hastily procured document agreeing to build a new access to the transformer.

In came the workmen with a familiar saw. They carved a 5-by-8-foot hole in the wall and carted the transformer away.

Degree

A federal judge said Friday in Baltimore he will rule early next week on a motion to dismiss a suit filed by a former midshipman who is seeking to force the U.S. Naval Academy to grant him an academic degree.

Dismissed from the academy one week before graduation two years ago, William Farley Jr., of Brielle, N.J., was found to have an unsatisfactory attitude within 24 hours of his announcing he had become a conscientious objector and could not accept a commission.

Farley contended in his suit that his grades put him on the dean's list his senior year, and that he had completed all academic requirements for a B.S. degree.

Hurt

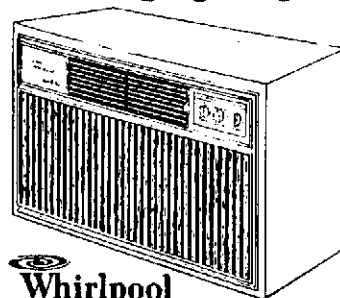

Mrs. Martha Mitchell said Friday in Washington her husband John, the former attorney general, is "a hurt person" because of his implication in the Watergate scandal but still would "go to jail for Richard Nixon."

"I don't know why," Mrs. Mitchell said in an early morning telephone call to a UPI reporter. "but maybe it's because he had so much faith in Nixon, even after all this."

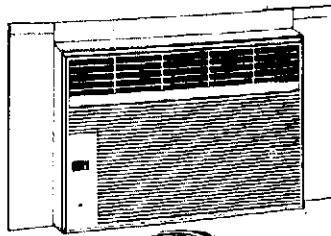

She said her husband, who was chairman of the Nixon re-election campaign committee at the time of the Watergate burglary last June, had lost "a helluva lot of weight" in the past few months.

After 6 million gallon overflow Pedro sewer nearly fixed

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

Sanitation crews, working late into the night, reported Friday that they hoped to complete repairs by this morning on a San Pedro pump station which let more than 6 million gallons of raw sewage escape into Los Angeles Harbor in the past four days.

The work, underway since early Tuesday, received a setback earlier Friday when a temporary pump failed and allowed nearly two million gallons of sewage to flow into the harbor area already quarantined by the initial overflow.

Crewmen at the San Pedro pump station, which was left awash in sewage when a 16-inch pipeline broke about 3 a.m. Tuesday, reported that 40 sanitation workers — some from stations as distant as Marina Del Rey — have been working day and night shifts to correct the problems.

"Hopefully, by the morning, we'll have the pumps working again," a crew member said Friday night. "That'll solve all our problems."

Lifeguards at Cabrillo Beach, where the strand inside the breakwater has been off-limits to bathers this week, reported that checks on the level of contaminants in the sea indicated the beach might be reopened by next Wednesday.

Sewage flowing into Cabrillo Beach waters initially was being contained by floating booms, but Friday one guard said the sewage no longer was visible on the water and appeared not to have harmed any sea life.

He added that twice-daily checks of the waters would continue, and that the public health quarantine on the strand will not be lifted until contamination levels fall.

The pump station in San Pedro is the collection point for all wastes from the port-side community. From there, the sewage passes under the channel to a Terminal Island treatment plant for decontamination.

11 hurt as train hits Vernon bus

A slow-moving train collided with a Southern California Rapid Transit District bus in Vernon Friday, injuring ten passengers and the driver.

The bus was going about 15 miles an hour across the tracks when the Santa Fe freight train struck the rear passenger door.

The bus driver, Robert McDonald, 38, Norwalk, told police he neither heard or saw the train at the blind intersection. Police said there is no mechanical warning signal at the crossing.

McDonald was in satisfactory condition at a Maywood Hospital.

Two held in slaying of L.A. motorcycle cop

United Press International

Police held two suspects Friday in connection with the killing of a motorcycle officer by the driver of a car he stopped for a traffic violation.

Initial reports said police also had found a car with a bullet hole in it and a gun which possibly was the murder weapon.

Police also were investigating the charred hulk of a car resembling the one driven by the slayer. The 1967 or 1968 Camaro was found in flames at midnight Thursday in Oxnard.

Two hours earlier, a bearded man matching the description of the killer was seen sobbing behind the wheel of a similar car on the Simi Freeway.

Killed was Charles Caracillo, 35, a 14-year veteran of the Los Angeles Police Department. He had stopped a bearded, shirtless man in Van Nuys for making an illegal left-hand turn.

The driver rested the barrel of a pistol on the front door and fired point blank at the officer. Caracillo fired three shots but they went wild. He collapsed in a driveway and the killer sped off.

Several hours later, Robert Lockhart of Simi Valley saw what apparently was the slayer's car parked on the side of the Simi Freeway, and he stopped to offer aid.

The driver was leaning over the wheel, sobbing, and Lockhart asked if he could help.

"Leave me alone," the driver shouted, drawing a pistol and then ordering him to leave. Lockhart said the man headed west into Ventura County.

Later, he said a composite drawing of the killer matched the motorist and police were operating on the assumption the two were the same man.

Suspect in Oregon bank job nabbed here

A 45-year-old transient was arrested Friday afternoon at an East Long Beach residence on suspicion of robbing an Oregon bank, police and the FBI reported.

The suspect, booked on a charge of bank robbery at Long Beach jail shortly after 4 p.m., was identified as Donald Laverne Huston, unemployed and with no permanent address.

Joe D. Jamieson, assistant director in charge of the Los Angeles FBI office, said Huston was one of two men accused of robbing a Salem, Ore., bank of $5,600 last April 12.

Acci-dent

Our 1969 auto was in an accident April 29 and was taken by City Tow Service to their yard on San Francisco Avenue. We had an estimator from the Long Beach Body and Paint shop examine the car on May 1 and assess the cost of repair. When it was delivered by City Tow Service to the body shop for repair there was a new dent on the side that wasn't damaged in the accident. The towing company refuses to pay the $45 required to fix the new dent. Since they are the only one that had the car, we feel they are liable for that cost. The body shop has given us a signed statement saying the dent had not been there May 1. Can you help? A.E.B., Long Beach.

No. Walter Dethlefs, owner of City Tow Service, told ACTION LINE "it is possible that we could have denied it," but it is also possible the man from the body shop "could have missed it in his estimate." Dethlefs said "I've done business for a number of years with (the body shop) and my relations with them are of the very worst nature." Therefore he wouldn't accept their signed statement unless it was repeated in court under oath. He said he would pay you only if you took the matter to small claims court and the judge ruled in your favor.

We live near the North Long Beach section of the Artesia Freeway. We were told six months ago that landscaping the freeway would begin in May, but the weeds and trash near the freeway haven't even been cleared away yet. This situation is causing a mice problem. Can ACTION LINE find out what's causing the delay? W.B., Long Beach.

The bids for the landscaping contracts were opened in May and the first part of June, according to a spokesman for the California Division of Highways. Roadside clearing should begin in about two weeks. The entire landscape project will take approximately a year to complete, but the weeds and trash in your area should be cleared away by the end of July.

Don't make waves

I left some long-playing records out in the sun, and they got warped. Is there any way to straighten them out? I've asked several individuals, but nobody has any suggestions. V.O., Long Beach.

A quality control engineer for Capitol Records suggested that you place a plate of glass on top of the records, cover the glass with a pile of books, and leave them this way for about a week. The glass, which has no texture, will prevent the weight of the books from damaging the records' grooves. The Capitol engineer added that this system doesn't always work. Since heat not only warps a record, but also can destroy the individual grooves, your records still may not play properly even if you manage to straighten them out. Some individuals heat the record first before applying weight, but the Capitol spokesman said experts discourage this practice because the amount of heat is difficult to control and it may cause additional damage to the grooves. Records always should be stored in a vertical position away from direct sunlight or heat.

Island rite

My fiance and I are planning to be married in Hawaii this summer. Can ACTION LINE find out what the marriage license requirements are in that state. Is there a waiting period? We are planning to have a reception when we return. I know that a reception card often is enclosed in a wedding invitation, but is it also correct to send a reception invitation and a wedding announcement in the same envelope? T.M., Long Beach.

To obtain a marriage license in Hawaii, you must be at least 18 years old and have a premarital health certificate from your doctor. There is no waiting period or residency requirement. If you are under 18 years old, you must have a signed and notarized consent statement from your parents. If you are under 20 years old, you must present your birth certificate. The fee is $5. Reception invitations and wedding announcements are frequently mailed in the same envelope, according to several sources ACTION LINE checked. A spokesman for a wedding consultant firm said that most etiquette books do not deal with this specific question because a private wedding with a reception several days later would not be considered a formal affair, and therefore the etiquette rules are more relaxed.

Pole

Can you help me locate a store that sells barber poles? J.D., Long Beach.

New barber poles can be purchased at most barber supply stores, such as Arnold Barber and Beauty Supply, 745 Pine Ave., Long Beach, and Stern Barber, Hairstyling and Beauty Supplies, 7922 Melrose Avenue, Los Angeles. Prices range from about $60 for an 18-inch pole to $144 for a 39-inch pole. If what you're looking for is an antique pole of cast iron covered with porcelain to use as an accent piece in your home, you might try the All City Barber and Beauty Supply, 408 S. Main St., Santa Ana; Country Corner Antiques, 2052 Atlantic Ave., Long Beach; and Kathy's Antiques, 1340 E. Market St., Long Beach. Prices for these antique poles, most of which are between 20 and 50 years old, are about the same as the prices for the new, more streamlined poles, ACTION LINE was told.

Crash hurts 2 policemen

Two police officers were injured Friday with their patrol car swerved out of control and crashed into a utility pole in southwest Los Angeles.

Joseph Turek, 31, was listed in serious condition at California Hospital with possible rib fractures and facial cuts. Charles Merritt, 37, was treated at the same hospital for cuts to his head and chest.

The cause of the accident was under investigation.

Moretti bids for Reagan debate

SACRAENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti Friday once again challenged Gov. Reagan to a televised debate on Reagan's proposed tax and spending limitation initiative and once again the governor refused.

Moretti, a Democratic gubernatorial hopeful, issued the debate invitation in the wake of an announcement by Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. that the tax ceiling proposal appeared to have "comfortably" qualified for a special Nov. 6 ballot.

"Since the measure will be before the California electorate, it is more important than ever that there be a discussion of the merits of your proposal," Moretti said. "The best possible format for such a discussion would be a public face to face meeting between you and me."

Asked if Reagan would accept, the governor's office referred newsmen to his first response May 1 when he rejected the initial challenge.

At that time Reagan said the only issue as he saw it was deciding whether citizens should be allowed to vote on the plan. He also said TV debates were effective for comparing candidates for office. "Deciding whether the people should be allowed to vote or not is hardly a complicated issue and I'm not a candidate for office so there really is no need to air our difference," Reagan said.

The initiative, which would be written into the Constitution, would clamp a lid on the total amount of revenue the state could collect from taxpayers. The restriction could be lifted only by a vote of the people. The proposal also would grant a one time 20 per cent rebate to income taxpayers next April 15 on their 1973 tax bill and calls for a permanent 7.5 per cent income tax cut.

Moretti 'skeptical' of oil crisis claims

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood, reploved familiar ground Friday in a talk and question session before the Long Beach Lions Club in the Lafayette Hotel.

Moretti detailed his skepticism of the fuel crisis, his confidence in a growing momentum for his gubernatorial campaign, his opposition to capital punishment and his conviction that Gov. Reagan's tax reform proposals "are destructive of representative democracy."

The 37-year-old speaker cited government and oil industry sources assuring the nation has petroleum resources ranging from "enough for 500 years" to "as long as we'll ever need them."

Why was no crisis proclaimed last year, he asked, when crude oil reserves were lower than now? Ending of the Vietnam war, he said, has practically wiped out the need for tremendous quantities of petroleum byproducts in Southeast Asia.

Moretti acknowledged possibility of a real problem in a shortage of refining facilities and challenged the oil industry to lay blame there if that is the case.

"My real skepticism comes in when I look at what can be gained by the oil industry if this crisis is allowed to become real when it might not be. First of all the major oil producers have begun reducing, sometimes eliminating, their sales of crude oil to independent distributors, thereby diminishing and squeezing out the competition in the field.

"Why the escalation of prices by leaps and bounds even if there is a shortage?" Moretti asked. "It seems to me the least those of us in government can do is require the presentation of concrete and real evidence of a crisis" and refutation of the whole scenario that would result in tremendous profits for the oil industry.

Moretti said his projected campaign for the governorship has now banked about $500,000 towards the $1.25 million budget estimate of his primary campaign.

And while San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto and Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. are ahead of him in name recognition surveys, none exceed Moretti on the survey query about favorable or unfavorable reaction to names of probable Democratic candidates.

Responding to an audience question, Moretti said he honestly and conscientiously disagreed with the legalization of killing either by capital punishment or abortion. As for "defying the will of the people," Moretti said he may have been in such defiance by not agreeing that Richard Nixon should be elected President in 1968 and 1972.

"I hope that people are not looking for someone who is just a mirror and reflects whatever is popular at any given moment."

Gov. Reagan's tax reform proposals, including a constitutional ceiling on taxes, Moretti noted, drew opposition at the recent governors' conference at Lake Tahoe from every governor of both political parties except one, the governor of New Hampshire, which has no income tax.

The plan, he said, "changes our method of governing which has existed for 200 years. It removes authority, responsibility and obligation from the legislative branch. It handcuffs all future governors and legislatures; regardless of the crisis they may not enact a solution."

Moretti charged further that Reagan's claim that Californians paid 44 per cent of their income to taxes was not accurate. He said Reagan included such items as postage stamps, athletic admission tickets and sales of federal agricultural surpluses in his calculation. The figure actually is 32 per cent, Moretti said, which "is second lowest of any industrial country on the face of the earth."

County files suit in Chace death crash

Los Angeles County has filed a civil suit, asking recovery of $29,706.25, against the driver, owner and equipper of the truck blamed for the accident which killed Supervisor Burton Chace last Aug. 21.

The suit, filed in Long Beach Superior Court, names as defendants Sears Roebuck and Company, Armstrong Rubber Co., Edward Yurkunas, owner of the truck, and Guy P. Caputo, its driver when the accident occurred.

The action also seeks damages from 20 "John Doe" defendants.

Chace, 72, died from injuries sustained in the collision, which occurred when his county-owned Cadillac was struck head-on by a flatbed truck between Imperial Highway and Century Boulevard on the Long Beach Freeway.

The State Department of Justice crime laboratory ruled the accident was caused by a manufacturing defect in the Sears Roebuck tire, which blew out, sending the truck careening across two freeway lanes, over the divider and into the Chace car.

The action filed by Dep. County Counsel Lloyd W.

Pellman seeks to recover $23,573.93 paid to Chace's widow, Pauline, in Workmen's Compensation benefits and reimbursement for an undetermined amount of benefits paid to Foreman D. Foreman, Chace's chauffeur, who is recovering from injuries.

The suit also seeks $6,062 for damage to the Cadillac sedan.

$3.8 million worth

Supervisors add projects

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisors went on a mild spending spree Friday, adding $3.8 million worth of projects to the proposed 1973-74 county budget.

Coupled with additions made earlier this week, the total extra spending approved to date comes to $4.6 million.

These additions normally would have an effect on the proposed property tax rate. However, supervisors specifically designated that federal revenue sharing funds would be used for about $2 million of the additions, and in any event the board still has about $170 million in revenue sharing funds to play with.

Until they decide how to use the funds the tax rate picture will remain unclear.

The board's actions so far have had the effect of pushing the general fund spending package to $2.3 billion. And by the time it concludes deliberations, the total general fund package, including an appropriation for $170 million in revenue sharing funds, is expected to exceed $2.6 billion.

As the proposed budget now stands, the projected tax rate for 1973-74 is $4.0954 per $100 of assessed valuation, but it is expected that the rate will be considerably reduced once the supervisors apply the revenue sharing funds.

The earlier part of Friday's deliberations was highlighted by a minor tussle between Supervisor James Hayes and Superior Court Presiding Judge Alfred McCourtney over the judge's statement that he did not believe additional superior courtrooms were needed in the county's planned $31.3 million court building in Compton.

Hayes said it would be "breaking faith" with the people of Compton if the county did not go ahead with the planned building, especially since they had been told there was a need for the courthouse and that plans were under way for its construction.

The judge, however, told Hayes, "I'm not here in opposition to anything and I realize you might have other considerations regarding the building. I'm simply giving you these statistics and telling you where our needs lie and where they don't."

Later, the judge amplified his statement, saying that the creation of a new courthouse in Compton would lead to a situation of having unneeded courtrooms in two judicial districts covering Compton and other areas.

He said there was a need for the planned 18 superior courtrooms in the Compton project when the concept first was developed in 1969. But he said no new courtrooms were needed in the central judicial district, which includes Compton, because of a "leveling off of the population" in the district.

Supervisors continued their deliberations until Monday at 9:30 a.m. and vowed they would tentatively adopt a spending package by Tuesday afternoon.

Two county commission resignations

From Our L.A. Bureau

The resignation of two key county commissioners — Thelma Mahoney and Howard Martin — were announced on Friday.

Supervisor Pete Schabarum said he received a letter of resignation from Mrs. Mahoney, president of the Civil Service Commission, giving her notice effective July 1.

He said Mrs. Mahoney told him she and her husband, Joseph, were moving to Northern California and that she could no longer serve on the commission.

Mrs. Mahoney, 60, was appointed to the three member commission in 1961 and would have completed her second six-year term in December.

Supervisor James Hayes gave first knowledge of Martin's resignation from the county's Regional Planning Commission when he asked his colleagues to approve the appointment of Dr. Robert Meeker of Manhattan Beach to the vacant spot.

Hayes gave no reason for Martin's resignation and the commissioner was not available for comment.

Dr. Meeker is assistant director of the Center for Computer-based Behavioral Studies at UCLA.

Study indicates TV decreases kids' creativity

Associated Press

A University of Southern California research report has found that habitual television viewing appears to decrease creativity in children.

Stanley L. Stern concluded in a study of intellectually gifted grade school pupils that TV may increase vocabularies and fill youngsters' minds with facts, but it apparently detracts from their ability to use these resources in divergent, creative ways.

"From this study, one could not make a sweeping indictment of the TV industry, but the trend toward decreased creativity is a serious warning," he said.

STERN, who conducted his study for a doctor of education degree from the USC School of Education, selected 250 intellectually gifted fourth, fifth and sixth graders in the Garden Grove Unified School District. He is an elementary teacher in the Los Angeles city schools.

He divided them into seven groups. Each of six groups was assigned to watch a certain category of programs exclusively and regularly for three weeks. The categories were cartoons, educational TV, sports, comedies, drama and a catchall category, "everything." The seventh group, which became the "control group," was given no specific instructions to watch or not watch TV.

Stern administered creativity tests before the experimental viewing period and followed it with more tests.

He said the control group was the only one which showed a consistent improvement in creativity in the second test. The scores of the six viewer groups showed a notable decrease in all areas of creativity except for verbal abilities.

AMONG the most surprising findings were that educational programs tend to depress creativity scores, he said, while dramatic shows, including violence, increased creative performance of some pupils to a slight degree. Cartoons were seen to be the worst TV fare for youngsters across the board, he said.

Younger children were found to be more affected by TV than older children and the creativity of girls generally was reduced more than that of boys.

Stern said it was not within the scope of his study to explain why TV affects creativity, but he speculated that because TV is a passive activity in many cases it becomes a substitute for active pursuits which are more educational and conducive to mental development. He said TV also occupies time that might be spent more profitably in socializing with peers or with parents and other adults.

Year-around school incentive plan gains

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A $600,000 "carrot" to encourage local districts to try out year-round schools was endorsed Friday by the Senate Finance Committee.

Under the bill by Sen. Albert Rodda, D-Sacramento, a district could apply for up to $25,000 to help switch to experimental year-round schools.

Rodda's bill would also free some state school building aid funds to be used to convert school buildings for year-round use. For instance, the money might be used to install air conditioners in hot areas.

"What you have here is a carrot for the districts," said Finance Committee Chairman Randolph Collier, D-Yreka.

The 10-0 vote sent the measure to the Senate floor.

Another provision would require the state Department of Education to evaluate year-round schools.

California's most common year-round scheme is the "45-15" plan, where students and teachers are split into four groups. Each group is in the classrooms for 45 days on a staggered basis, then takes 15 days off. The usual three-month summer vacation is eliminated. Backers of the plan say it boosts capacity of school facilities by 25 per cent.

The bill is SB 1107.

Transit superboard wins Senate test

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A new superboard that would have the job of building a rapid transit system in Los Angeles and Orange counties won narrow approval Friday in the Senate Finance Committee.

The existing Southern California Rapid Transit District would be demoted to a branch of the new Southern California Transportation District under the bill by state Sen. Lawrence Walsh. SCRTD would be handed jurisdiction over bus operations.

Walsh, a Democrat from Huntington Park, has argued the new district is needed because SCRTD has done little to push rapid transit systems that don't involve buses.

The six-member district board would have three members each from Los Angeles and Orange counties. Ventura County, originally in the bill, was taken out through an amendment.

New rapid transit construction and equipment purchases would be financed by the Los Angeles and Orange County allotments of revenues from the sales tax on gasoline.

Walsh' bill cleared the Finance Committee on a 7-2 vote, a bare majority in the 13-member committee.

It now goes to the Senate floor. The bill is SB 1275.

Ban proposed on females as prison guards

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A measure calling for a ban on the hiring of female guards at state prisons for men was proposed Friday by a Republican lawmaker who said, "Biology simply can't be changed by legislation."

Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, also said female guards would cause "inmate unrest" and was a "potentially deadly policy with all the ingredients necessary to instigate riots."

Female guards have been hired by the State Department of Corrections at San Quentin, Soledad and the California Medical facility at Vacaville, Richardson said. "There are differences between man and women," Richardson said. "There are some jobs, such as skin search, shower and other inmate unrest" and was a "potentially deadly policy with all the ingredients necessary to instigate riots."

Turnabout by Nixon allows G.E. jet deal

By CLYDE H. FARNSWORTH

PARIS — The White House, reversing the thrust of an earlier ban, has ruled that General Electric Company may collaborate on the production of a new jet engine system in partnership with a major French company, according to sources here.

A spokesman in the Paris office of G.E., Claude Lomas, confirmed industry reports that there has been a new ruling on G.E.'s core element for a jet engine that is being developed for the next generation of medium-range aircraft.

EXCLUSIVE N.Y. TIMES SERVICE

Lomas added that G.E. is still waiting for the export license that would mark formal approval.

Industry sources said President Nixon told President Georges Pompidou of France of the decision to permit the Schenectady, N.Y.-based electrical giant to collaborate at their summit conference at Reykjavik three weeks ago.

WHAT THE White House approved, Lomas said, was a plan to make the core of the engine, which is where most of the advanced technology is involved, in the United States and to export the systems to France, where a French company would complete the engines.

In this way, the American technology would be "shared and still protected," Lomas insisted.

According to American Sources, the new decision was taken by Peter M. Flanigan, a presidential counselor, and by Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security adviser.

THE ORIGINAL export license application by G.E. last August was rejected on the following grounds:

— The engine's core element is a strategic system necessary for national defense. It was developed with Pentagon funds for the B1 bomber.

— The engine was constructed by G.E. with Defense Department money, or in other words the money of American taxpayers.

— Constructing the engine with a French company instead of building it completely in the U.S. and exporting it checks the number of workers who could be employed by the project.

G.E. has argued that it needs French money to help it develop the engine for the commercial market. But the deal also cements G.E.'s relations with the French government. Just announced, as possibly one extra dividend from the decision, were contracts to G.E. for two nuclear power stations awarded by the state-owned electric power monopoly.

Under the project G.E. would build the so-called 10-ton engine (known also in the trade as the CFM-56) in partnership with France's Societe Nationale d'Etude et de Construction (known more simply as SNECMA.)

THE FRENCH government owns 89 per cent of the shares of SNECMA. The other 11 per cent have been held since 1959 by the Pratt and Whitney Company, G.E.'s chief American rival in airplane engines in the U.S. as well as the world.

The engine would be used to power airliners not yet built.

These would be medium-sized subsonic planes needing shorter runway space, to ply medium-range routes — planes that in effect would replace present DC9's, Caravelles and Boeing 727's.

Aircraft industry sources see a market for between 4,000 and 6,000 of the 10-ton engines, which would be worth upward of $4 billion.

At the same time, a Roslyn, N.Y., surgeon filed a class action lawsuit against Merrill Lynch claiming its recommendation in 1968 to 1969 to investors to buy shares of Scientific Control Corp. had cost about 5,000 investors losses that probably ran to $32 million. But the SOVIET LEADER Leonid I. Brezhnev talks to group of American businessmen Friday in meeting at Blair House in Washington. The business executives were invited by Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, left, to meet the Soviet chief.

Concorde costs soar, potential buyers fade

LONDON (AP) — The British government Friday announced a hike of almost $240 million in the soaring development costs of the Concorde supersonic jetliner.

The announcement came a day after disclosure that nine more airlines have canceled orders to buy the plane, leaving only nine firm customers.

Michael Heseltine, minister for aerospace, told the House of Commons total development costs for the Concorde have increased to $2.6 billion.

Heseltine said the manufacturers — the British Aircraft Corporation (BAC) and Aerospatiale of France — are studying a number of improvements on the aircraft, especially noise reduction.

"The cost of these, if approved, would be additional to the current estimate," he told the Commons.

Heseltine said $87.5 million of the increased costs are due to wage and price increases in Britain and France, $75 million to alterations in money exchange rates and the balance to revision of estimates and the date for certification of the aircraft.

Earlier this week, Japan Air Lines said it had claimed a refund of $700,000 paid as deposit for the purchase of three Concorde. BAC later disclosed that eight other airlines also had requested repayment of their deposits on 18 of the supersonic jets.

This leaves only nine firm orders — five from the state-owned British Overseas Airways Corporation and four from Air France, also a government-owned airline. There are preliminary purchase agreements for three from Iran and two from mainland China.

Brezhnev, capitalists chat, OK trade pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An agreement to increase U.S.-Soviet commercial ties was signed Friday during a cordial, two-hour meeting between Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and 52 top American capitalists.

The Soviet government announced at the time that it will permit 10 American corporations to establish offices in Moscow and other firms may be accredited in the future.

The agreement, spelled out in two official protocols signed by Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai S. Patolichev, provides additional office space in Moscow for American trade advisers and opens the way for a joint U.S.-Soviet chamber of commerce.

ASKED TO characterize his meeting with American businessmen, Brezhnev held up two fingers in a "V" and replied: "in two words — exceptionally good."

Most of the firms represented at the meeting are already doing business in the Soviet Union.

James J. Needham of the New York Stock Exchange said Brezhnev handled the meeting "like a typical American." The conversation was more of a monologue by Brezhnev, he said, adding: "There were no questions."

The Soviet leader greeted each of the businessmen individually as they entered Blair House, his temporary guest quarters across from the White House. He chatted with each one.

WHEN THE meeting began, Brezhnev and Shultz were seated at a table and the businessmen were grouped in a semi-circle.

Under the agreement, the U.S. commercial counselor will be provided with "new facilities at a convenient location" in Moscow. The counselor, who is attached to the American Embassy in Moscow, advises U.S. businessmen in commercial dealings with Soviet organizations.

The protocols also said that U.S. Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent will meet soon with American business and financial leaders "to discuss the desirability of establishing in the United States private sector a U.S.S.R.-U.S. chamber of commerce." Patolichev will conduct similar talks with Soviet foreign trade groups.

The companies cleared to do business with Russians from branch offices in the Soviet capital are Pullman Inc.; Occidental Petroleum Corp.; Chase Manhattan Bank; General Electric Co.; International Harvester Co.; Caterpillar Tractor Co.; Hewlett-Packard Co.; Engelhard Minerals Chemical Corp.; Bank of America, and First National City Bank.

CYRUS Eaton Sr., a longtime advocate of warmer U.S.-Soviet relations, emerged from the meeting saying the businessmen "are in favor of understanding and friendship and cooperation and trade between our countries."

"If there is true friendship between nations," he said, "it will always result in good business."

Donald M. Kendall, head of PepsiCo, said Brezhnev proved to be "a very warm human being" and "very serious about improved relations in trade."

Later, at a luncheon sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers for Patolichev, NAM President E. Douglas Kenna said his organization will work with other trade groups to gain congressional approval of most favored nation treatment — or preferential trade status — for the Soviet Union.

Saturday Review sold in bankruptcy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The sale of Saturday Review magazine to World Magazine was approved Friday by a federal bankruptcy referee.

The magazine went into SEC estimated the losses at nearer $15 million. bankruptcy in April after 48 years of publication. Norman Cousins, who owns World Magazine, announced plans to buy Saturday Review and resume publication at a later date under a new name.

Cousins was the editor of Saturday Review, but left after disagreements with the former owners. He then founded World.

The sale did not include the Saturday Review Book Club, for which attorney John Dinkelspiel said the parent company had a "hot deal" it hopes to close within two weeks.

Price for the magazine was a minimum of $371,250 and a maximum of $521,250, depending upon collection of accounts receivable, Dinkelspiel said.

IN NEW YORK, Cousins said the new magazine, Saturday Review World, will be a bi-weekly and the first issue will be published Sept. 11.

SEC charges Merrill, Lynch with fraud

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The Securities and Exchange Commission announced Friday fraud charges against Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc., the world's largest stock brokerage house.

At the same time, a Roslyn, N.Y., surgeon filed a class action lawsuit against Merrill Lynch claiming its recommendation in 1968 to 1969 to investors to buy shares of Scientific Control Corp. had cost about 5,000 investors losses that probably ran to $32 million. But the

Antitrust unit gets gas data

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Power Commission agreed reluctantly Friday to give the Senate natural gas data submitted by individual companies with the FPC's promise it would be held confidential.

The commission voted unanimously to comply with a subpoena from the Senate antitrust subcommittee headed by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.

But, at the same time, the FPC said it sent telegrams to natural gas producers strongly hinting that producers might seek a court order to prevent the release of the information.

INVOLVED was basic data submitted on a confidential basis by gas producing companies for an FPC study of natural gas reserves.

The study, recently released, indicated gas reserves were at least as low and probably lower than the estimates provided by the industry itself.

But when Hart asked to see the original data, an employee of the Bureau of Natural Gas had begun to destroy it, the FPC said.

The data was saved after it had been ripped in half but before it could be fed into an incinerator.

After reconstructing the material, the FPC said last week it found no significant discrepancies between the original data and the results reported in its summary study.

But Hart then subpoenaed the data.

IN VOTING to comply with the subpoena the commission said it was only bowing to a legal obligation but the commissioners were angry at the Senate move.

Commissioners Rush Moody Jr. and Albert B. Brooke Jr. said the subpoena forced the FPC into a breach of faith with the companies that submitted the information after the FPC pledged to protect its confidentiality.

McG loses Phase 4 role bid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Friday rejected Sen. George S. McGovern's proposal that Congress demand a role in shaping Phase 4 economic controls when the current price freeze ends. The vote was 49 to 27.

McGovern's proposal would have compelled President Nixon to notify Congress 15 days in advance of Phase 4, the control program which is to follow the current freeze, or in advance of any subsequent major change in his economic stabilization program. Once notified, Congress could change the President's program if it found it to be unsatisfactory.

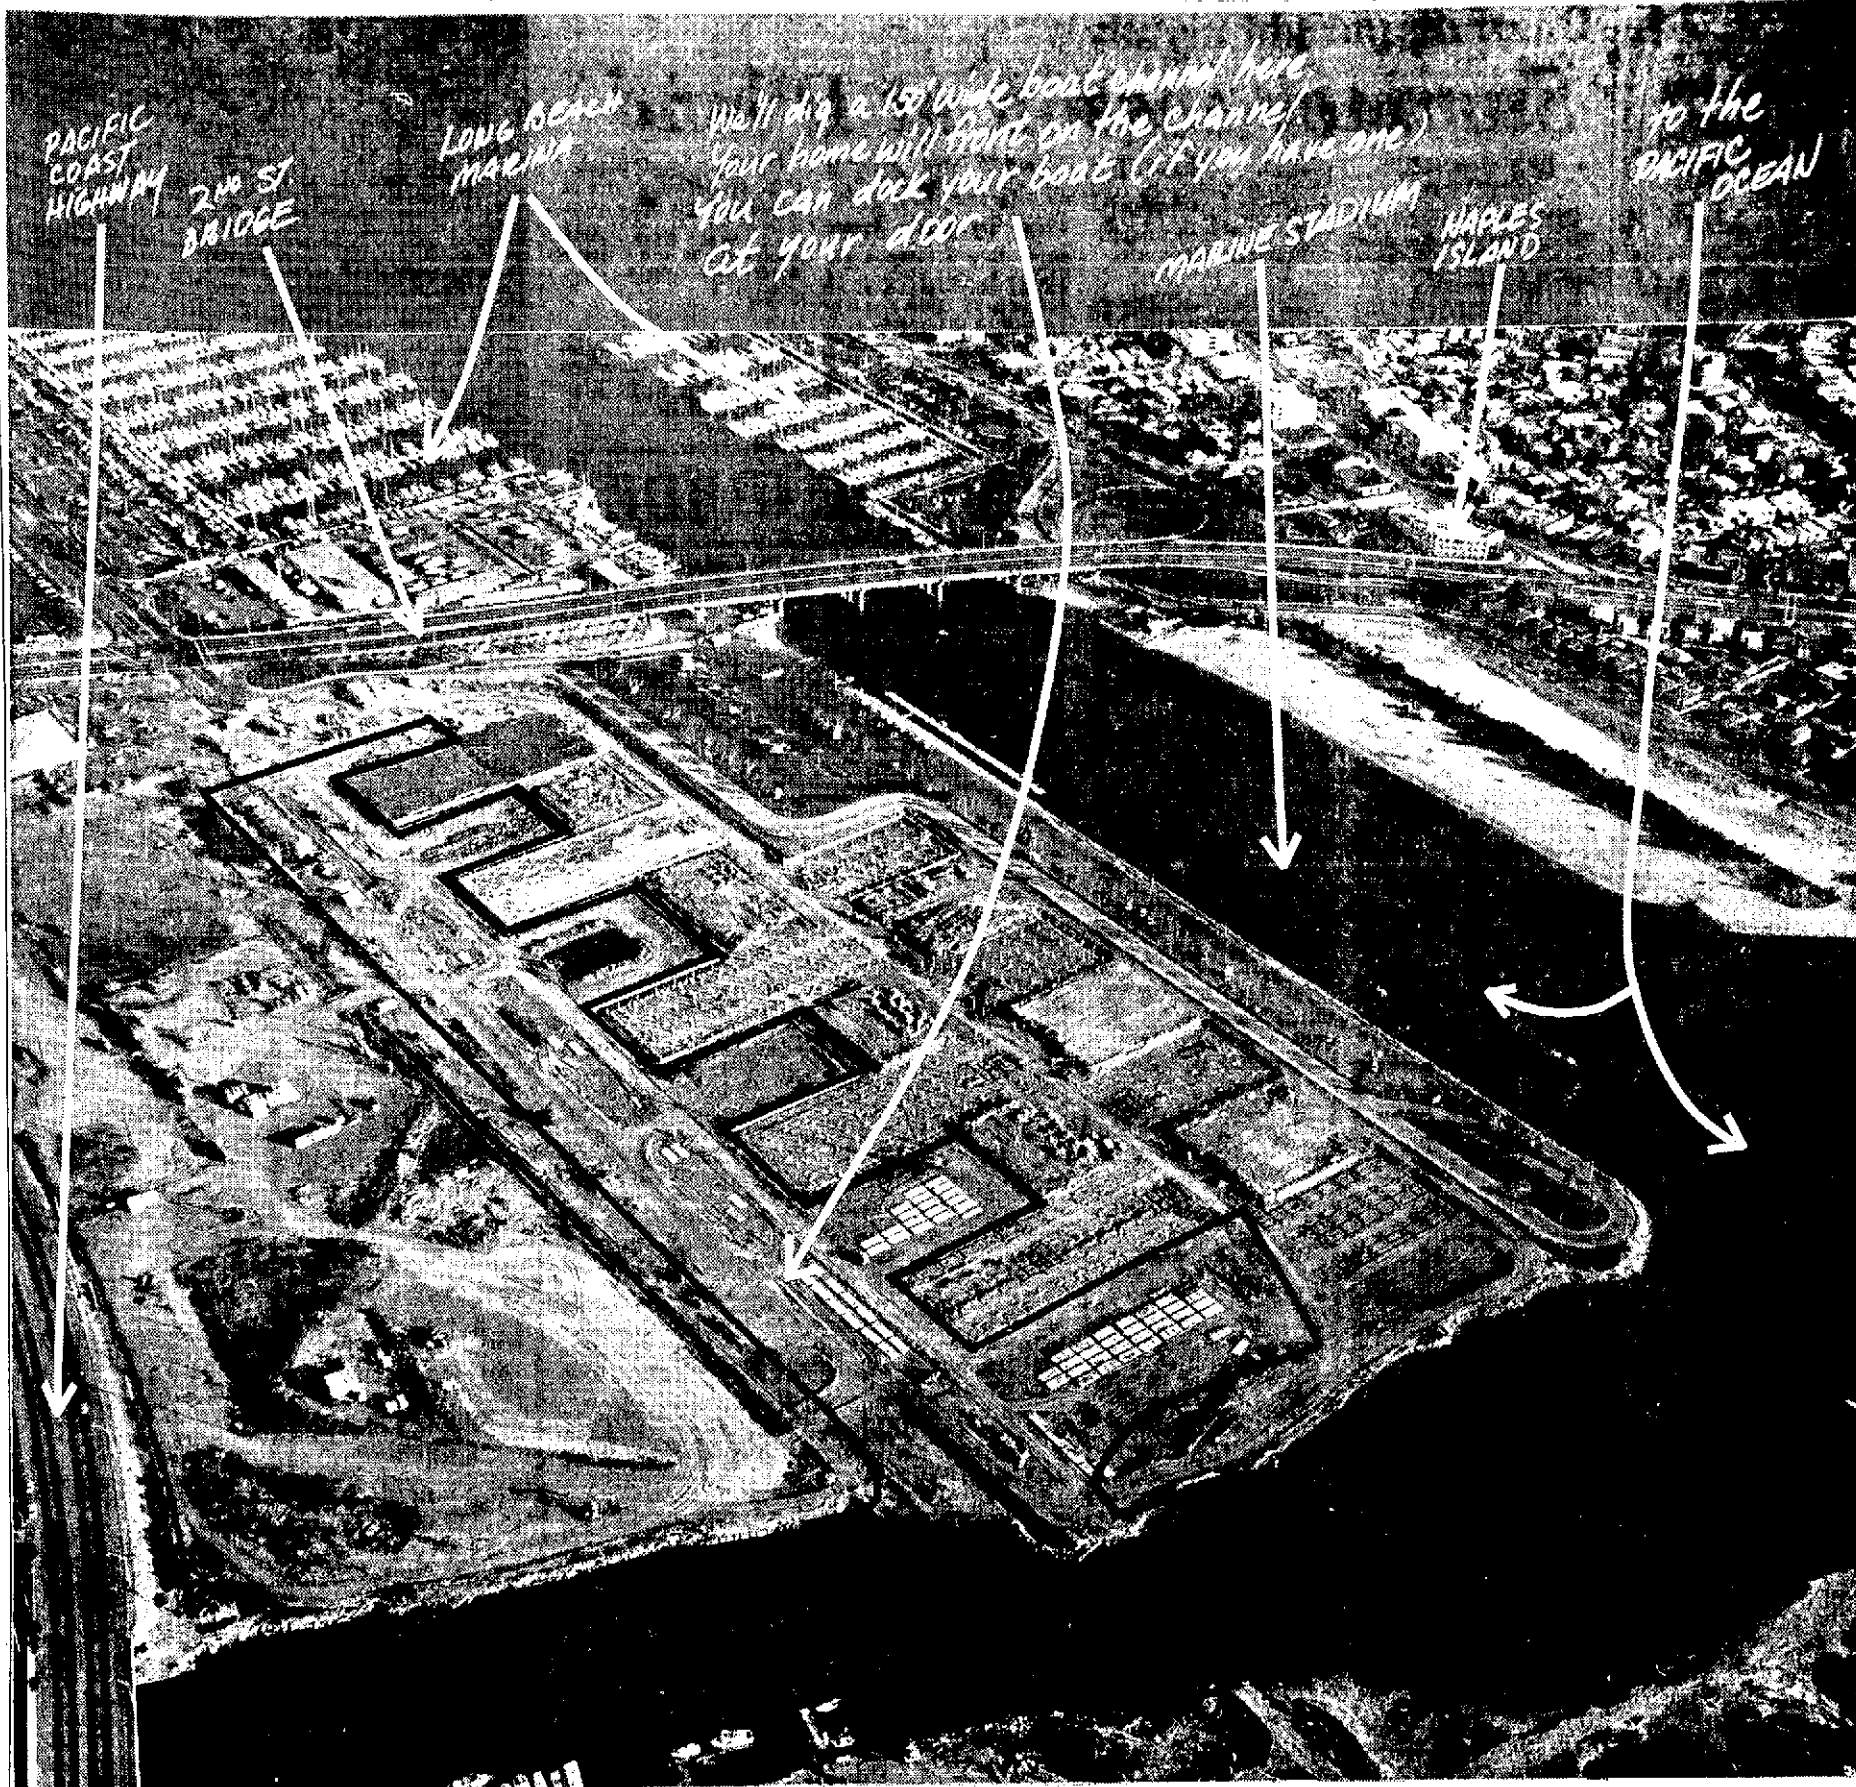

"We, the Congress, have abdicated almost all power over economic policy to him," the South Dakota Democrat said. "In effect we have become silent partners in his errors."

At the same time, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., announced he would propose next week that Congress freeze rents at their existing levels for the duration of the price freeze.

Rents were exempted from additional restraints when Nixon imposed a freeze of up to 60 days' duration on June 13.

Kennedy's amendment was believed to have a good prospect of winning Senate approval in light of its 50-38 vote last March to limit the size of rent increases, a plan subsequently rejected by the House.

The Senate Finance Committee Thursday amended that bill to provide for a 5.5 per cent increase in Social Security payments, starting next Jan. 1, for all 28 million recipients and to provide higher guaranteed incomes to 6.2 million aged, blind or disabled adults on welfare.

THIS MAY BE YOUR LAST CHANCE TO OWN A NEW WATERFRONT HOME

Even before we had anything to sell, people stood in line to find out about Marina Pacific. It's no wonder we generated a lot of excitement and enjoyed immediate outstanding success.

Marina Pacific isn't for everybody. We find that recreation minded folks who enjoy the good life and the outdoors have been the ones who are most interested. We firmly believe that we have the best value in a water-front home anywhere along the Los Angeles, Orange County Coast.

Studio Homes.....	from $30,200
1 Bedroom Homes.....	from $32,300
1 Bedroom & Den.....	from $48,900
2 Bedroom Homes.....	from $50,200
3 Bedroom 3 Bath Townhouses.....	from $75,100

We have a lot to offer a limited number of adults who have a blythe spirit and a taste of salt air in their lungs. At Marina Pacific, you'll practically be living in luxury on the high sea.

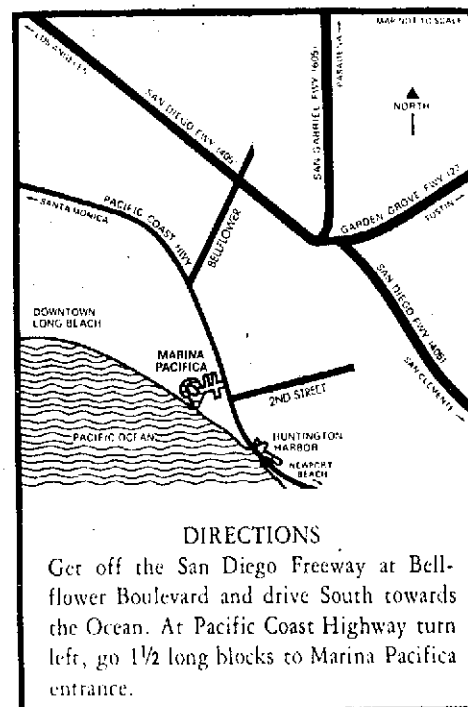

All of our condominium homes are built in keys or clusters surrounded by (or next to) deep water channels that lead directly through the marina to the blue Pacific. With the Pacific Ocean at your back door, you might want to dock your boat at the front door. You can, in a boat slip available only to Marina Pacific homeowners. Nothing crowded about this place at all. We're only using 20% of the land for homes, the rest is 80% water, green belts, parks, bicycle trails and gardens. The channels are 145 to 210 feet across. Just in case you're beginning to think that that isn't enough water for you, in the first phase we'll have 6 swimming pools with 6 jacuzzi pools right next to them. And just to keep up the excitement, we surrounded half the pools with huge lagoons.

There comes a time in every sailor's life to return to port, and when your home port is Marina Pacific, you'll hurry home. 16 different floor plans assure you complete variety and freedom of choice. They vary in size from an executive studio (perfect second home) to a spacious three bedroom and den, three bath townhouse.

Some models have the Master bedroom suite located in a loft, with a beam ceiling overlooking the living room 25 feet below with a big view of the water from your bed.

With the passage of Proposition 20 last November, waterfront property not only became difficult to buy, but all future construction along the ocean appeared to be at a standstill. Better get down to Marina Pacific and see what the excitement's all about... don't miss the boat.

Dazzling parade nightly Summer season at D'land

By BOB SANDERS
Staff Writer

Disneyland officially opened its 1973 Summer Season with dazzlingly "Electrical Parade."

For the second year the "Electrical Parade," brightened by a quarter of a million light bulbs, proved to be a crowd stopper.

The parade will be presented nightly at 9 and 11:30 p.m. through the summer season. Smart parade watchers gather along the curbs at least an hour in advance of the start to be sure of a good seat.

In addition to its second anniversary of the parade Disneyland is celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Brothers Disney's founding of their company.

Beginning with the 14-foot-high Fairy Princess from "Pinochio" with her 75-foot-long blue veil of lights hovering over her head, a long parade of lighted fantasy duplicates last year's dazzling production.

All the old favorites, from the Casey Jr. Circus train, Seven Dwarfs "Sleeping Beauty" dragon, Cinderella's Pumpkin Coach to the now-traditional patriotic unit with a blazing American flag, are there.

The latest addition to the spectacular is the new "It's A Small World" featuring 16 dolls in international costumes dancing and singing.

Because of the 9 p.m. parade, Disneyland's nightly Fireworks Festival, "Fantasy in the Sky" has been rescheduled. It will follow the event.

The music for the parade is provided by a modern electronic monster with the unlikely name of "Moog Synthesizer," which presents a unique recording of a "baroque hoedown."

For the 85-day season that ends Sept. 8, a variety of top musical entertainment is being presented on the various stages of the Magic Kingdom.

Tex Beneke is now presenting his and Glenn Miller's distinct musical styling at the Plaza Gardens from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. nightly.

The Eodernaires, featuring Paula Kelly, appear twice nightly.

Beneke will continue through June 30, to be followed by Harry James from July 1 through 14. Dick Jurgens from July 15 through 28. Bob Crosby from July 19 through Aug. 11. Woody Herman from Aug. 12 through 15 and Buddy Rich from Aug. 26 through Sept. 8.

For the younger people, there are nightly performances atop the Tomorrowland Stage of what Disney refers to as the "Great American Music Machine."

Currently through Friday the Cornelius Brothers and Sister Rose are holding forth.

Midget sub crew nixed escape try

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Two doomed marine researchers, trapped 31 hours in a tiny submarine on the ocean floor off Key West, decided to wait for a Navy rescue that "took a great deal longer" than expected rather than risk an escape attempt, the two survivors said Friday.

The four men, their minibus snarled in the wreckage of a sunken destroyer, 360 feet below the surface, "discussed the possibilities" and decided five hours after they were trapped to wait for the Navy, only 20 miles away, the survivors told newsmen.

Dr. Robert Meek, marine biologist from Santa Barbara, said the men "didn't think about much except trying to stay alive" as he kept up a running account of the rescue efforts over the sub's intercom to his companions in the after compartment throughout the grim undersea drama.

"We had a long, long conversation," he said. "We kept each other going."

But he said the rescue "took a great deal longer than we thought it would," and once the Navy rescue vessel arrived, "It was a long, tedious process before the divers got into the water."

The other survivor, Archibald "Jock" Menzies, the Sea Link's Scottish pilot, said that despite the tragedy, he was ready to "go down again tomorrow in the submarine."

Meanwhile, an overflow crowd paid final tribute to the two men for whom rescue came too late. E. Clayton Link, 31, and Albert Stover, 51, were eulogized at funeral services as dedicated scientists who died in the habitat they "loved so much."

ABOUT 500 friends, relatives and representatives of the scientific community attended the services as two clergymen told mourners the scientists died while serving mankind.

Link, whose father designed the research vessel, and Stover had the scuba diving equipment to leave their chamber, newsmen were told, but such an effort was described as hazardous at that depth.

"We discussed the possibilities and decided at 1500 hours (3 p.m.) the Navy divers would arrive, so we decided to wait for the arrival," Menzies said.

But a medical examiner estimated later that Link and Stover died of carbon dioxide poisoning about 15 hours before a television-guided grappling hook freed the Sea Link late Monday.

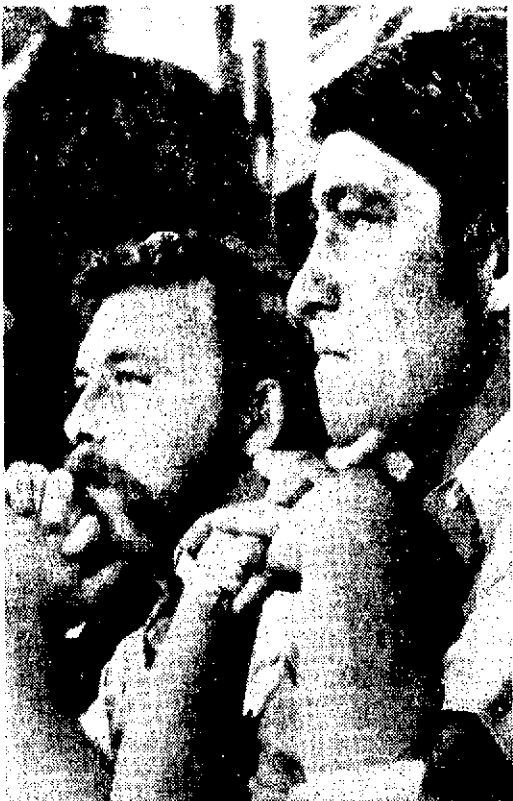

Asked why the sub was in such a precarious position near the underwater wreck, Menzies said, "We did not go into an area of debris. We went into an area that was clear to retrieve a fish trap."

The rescue television device had indicated the 21-foot long craft had been trapped by a portion of the destroyer's antennae jutting out parallel to the ocean floor.

Dr. David Youngblood, physician for the project, was asked why all four men didn't try to "blow out the hatch" and swim to the surface.

"The blow-and-go method is very hazardous at this depth," Youngblood said. Meek added, "There was no reason to expect we would not be rescued by the Navy."

Menzies said the proximity of the naval base at Key West was a factor in planning the fish research mission near American Shoals to the southeast of the island city.

THE TWO SURVIVORS of the research submarine tragedy, Archibald Menzies, left, and Dr. Robert Meek, ponder a question at a press conference. They said they had decided to await rescue by the Navy instead of trying to swim to the surface.

"We knew we would work 20 miles from the Key West Naval Base and we had investigated possibilities of rescue capabilities of the naval base," he said.

FOLLOWING the tragedy, Navy officials blamed the strength of the Gulf-stream current at the site, which swept divers away from the sub and plastered them against the stanchion of a diving bell, for the failure to rescue the divers.

Meek said that the four men trapped in the submarine "didn't think about much except trying to stay alive."

"We had a long, long conversation. We kept each other going."

At no time, Meek said, did the two men in the rear compartment comment that they thought they were dying.

"I was speaking with the men in the back most of the time," Meek said. "We kept a running record for them of what was going on."

Much later, after the doomed men had lost consciousness, Menzies and Meek said they felt the effects of breathing excessive carbon dioxide.

"We were getting pretty funny," Menzies said. "We said we were going to give up smoking."

The four men were conducting a marine life study for the Smithsonian Institution. The institution is also conducting an investigation.

Father Jon Jordan, assistant pastor of St. Helen's Church here, presided over Catholic services for Stover. Dr. Fred W. McClellan, pastor of Vero Beach's First Presbyterian Church, officiated at a Protestant service for Link.

Link's body was to be flown to Binghamton for interment and Stover was at nearby Jupiter.

"They died in the habitat with which they were used to and loved so much," said Father Jordan, adding that if Stover and Link had had the opportunity to choose their place to die it would have been the submarine.

McClellan counseled to ignore the "His" of the tragedy and said the two men "left a legacy to the world — a great legacy."

The Protestant minister read a note from Stover's wife which said, "Al loved the sea and he was happy in his chosen field. He was a good husband and a great father to his (seven) sons."

McClellan read a portion of a poem Link once gave his wife, Maureen, to explain his affinity to the sea and his work. It said, "For me to love is to commit myself; to commit myself fully."

"We would say they had fulfilled their mission as God conceived them ... courageously and victoriously," McClellan said.

'Liberal-conservative labels not viable'

How Texas firm boomed in religious publishing

By GEORGE CORNELL, AP Religion Writer

Here in the old cattle country of Waco, Texas, a once groping newcomer has become a prodigy of the religious publishing world.

Word, Inc., is the talk of the trade with some other westward firms that have risen to challenge the religious publishing predominance of the East.

"A lot of it was providential and extremely fortuitous," says Jarrell McCracken, 45, the devout, savvy founder-president of Word, whose sales now run $11.5 million annually, exceeding the religious output of most Eastern publishers.

Besides happenstance, however, some special insights into the religious concerns of the country also have gone into the shifting balance of religious publishing and into the stream of top sellers from the houses of the West and Midwest.

"WHO ARE they?" went the surprised puzzlement in Eastern publishing circles when the out-country houses began forging into the market.

"Where did they come from?" But their rapid growth has continued.

"New York is not really the place to be to know the religious pulse of the American people," McCracken said in an interview. "I don't believe you can effectively publish religion without being a part of it and being with the people who are involved in it."

That specific, avowed commitment to nurturing faith has been a hallmark of the emerging big-time religious publishers of the inland region. Some have hewed to a distinctively conservative, evangelical output, such as Zondervan Publishing House of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Tyndale House of Wheaton, Ill., both with ballooning sales.

While Word Inc., also stemmed from that conservative, evangelical orientation in founder

RELIGION

McCracken, a dedicated Southern Baptist, the company has broadened its range to enlist authors of various Christian views.

"The old liberal-conservative labels are not really viable," said Floyd Thatcher, 55, the company's astute vice president and executive editor, a veteran in the field. "We're concerned with the entire Christian arena."

"We want to reach the guy who has turned off the church as well as the church people locked into sterile approaches to religion and also those confused about why they are in church, people searching for the real meaning of Christianity."

WITH THAT wide-gauged perspective, aimed at kindling individual faith and renewal of the church in a time of changing patterns of religious organization, the firm has turned out a long line of big sellers, including:

The high figures compare with an average book's sales of under 5,000.

The company also has begun corraling authors that once wrote only for eastern houses, such as Malcolm Boyd's new one, "The Lover"; Charles Merrill Smith's "How to Talk to God Without Feeling Religious"; and Elizabeth O'Connor's "Eight Day of Creation" and "A Search for Silence."

Manhattan lawyer William Stringfellow, a prolific writer on Christian activism, also has shifted from an Eastern house to Word, Inc., for his coming book, still untitled, on religion and politics.

"Whatever an author's Christian position might be, we're interested in it if it carries authentic meaning, whether we agree with all of it or not," McCracken said. He said this has nettled some conservatives but their position gets ample attention, too.

He added: "We did a lot of soul-searching in deciding on this inclusive policy," he said. "We knew some people would clobber us. But there are a lot of competent Christian writers, with special points of view, who serve as catalysts. Even if what they say is only 30 per cent valid, it may be prophetic, and we're open to it."

IN LINE WITH this policy, the company recently sponsored a major conference in Houston on the future of the church, including a spectrum of the nation's top Christian thinkers. McCracken himself has some ideas on that future.

"The church is in a transitional change as significant as that of the Protestant Reformation," he said. "The church is going to emerge with a totally different shape and form, and we're interested in the ideas pointing the way."

Word, Inc., got its beginning in 1951 when McCracken, then a sportscaster who preached and taught youth groups on weekends, recorded a catchy portrayal of Christianity as a football game, complete with dubbed in crowd noises.

Stores in the area soon were demanding the record, called "The Game of Life," and McCracken gradually was propelled into the record business. His firm grew into the country's largest religious record company; and in 1965, it entered the book field. It has turned out 325 titles so far — nearly 50 a year.

REV. DAVID REED At Downtown Church

Welcome new pastor at 1st Congregational

Rev. David M. Reed has accepted a call from First Congregational Church, and has begun his ministry as pastor of the historic church at Third Street and Cedar Avenue.

A native of Ontario, Calif., Reed, 35, was educated at University of the Pacific and received his Master of Theology degree from Claremont School of Theology. Following two years as an assistant minister in La Canada, he spent six years at Arcadia Congregational Church, where he developed a well-rated youth program. He comes to the Long Beach church from a position as executive director of the Arizona Ecumenical Council, headquartered in Phoenix.

Rev. Reed was one of many candidates considered and interviewed during the interim ministry of Rev. Dr. Stuart LeRoy Anderson. He moves to Long Beach with his wife, Diane, who is completing work on her Masters Degree, and three children.

Balks at transfer

REDLANDS, (AP) Authorities of the United Methodist Church this week granted permission for Rev. William O. Smith, pastor of Cross Roads Church in Phoenix, Ariz., to withdraw from the denomination rather than be transferred. Smith was freed to organize his own congregation.

$1 billion fly-off slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army Friday chose Bell Helicopter Co. of Fort Worth, Tex., and Hughes Aircraft Co. of Culver City, as competitors in a multimillion-dollar fly-off to decide who will eventually produce a new super-attack helicopter.

Both firms will develop two prototypes each for the competition expected to be completed in 1976.

The contracts for the fly-off provide $44.7 million for Bell and $70.3 million for Hughes. Ultimately the new helicopter is expected to cost at least $1 billion.

It would carry wire-guided missiles and be capable of flying at night.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

Old newsboy's memories

This newsboy was an appealing kid with a big grin. And he knew how to sell, too. He was working the traffic at a stop light and it seemed like everyone bought a paper. He stirred up some fond nostalgia in the mind of this columnist. For you see, I'm an old newsboy myself.

The first job I ever had was selling the Cincinnati Enquirer back in Greenville, Ohio. I had a paper route which included homes, stores, banks, barber shops, the jail and, of all things, saloons. All this, I'm chagrined to admit, was a long way back. Indeed, maybe it has about it a tinge of ancient history.

You see, we are talking about a bygone era when saloons were pretty generally in disfavor in those pre-prohibition days. And that wasn't all. I happened to be a minister's son and this made saloons even further off base for me. And to top that, I was a young, tender fledgling—a minor, to put it bluntly.

BUT ONE THING was sure. I wasn't too young to snag a customer wherever one was available and I figured everyone should read the newspaper, especially the Enquirer. So enthusiastically and energetically I pursued my daily paper route until one day, emerging through the swinging doors of a saloon with my newspaper bag over my shoulder, who should I run plumb into but my mother! To her, saloons were of the devil, and I assure you that was the last day this old newsboy sold papers in saloons. Thereafter I farmed out that part of my business while I kept all other establishments.

One thing I remember with pride is the deftness with which I could sail the Enquirer straight up to a householder's door without even slowing down my hike. I folded the paper in such a way that, if lucky, it would land open face up if I careened it properly off the door of the house.

I also had a street corner stand, and agonized citizens complained that my shrill cries, "Here y'ar. Get your Enquirer. Read all about it," could be heard for blocks. The paper sold for a nickel in those days, which, as I seem to recall, was more than double the two-cent price of lesser papers. I smugly took pride in my higher-class clientele, those superior persons who could and would shell out a nickel with an air of grandeur.

To this day I can almost smell the inky papers as I took them off the early morning train from the city, and even yet can feel the thrill that I alone had the news straight from the presses. In those pre-radio and pre-TV days I was newswise—the first and best informed "man" (aged 10) in town.

My first move up from newsboy was to cub reporter on the old Findlay, Ohio Morning Republican, now called The Publican-Courier, where I worked for Lowell Hemminger who became my lifelong friend. Lowell and sons operate one of the best small city papers in the country. The first regular beat I had was the local undertaking parlors and what I turned out must have been pretty good, for one man told me it might be worth dying to be the subject of one of my tear-jerking stories. My obituary story writing, strange as it may seem, was interesting and good training, too, as it gave me an insight into the poignancy of human experience. I made lots of friends and learned much on that beat. I also covered the city council meetings but found the undertaking parlors more interesting, for most of the time the former was the deader of the two, at least as I viewed it.

LATER ON I went to the old Detroit Journal where I worked for another cherished friend, the late Grove Patterson, editor and human being extraordinary. Later on, after a lot of soul-search-

GOINGS ON

Rev. Dale McClain, field director in Indonesia for the Oriental Missionary Society, will speak about that country Sunday, 6:30 p.m. in EVANGELICAL UNITED METHODIST, 1700 Temple Ave. He was responsible for the building of a large center in Hong Kong before going to Indonesia.

The Benediction, a musical team from Grace College in Winona Lake, Ind., will present the service Sunday, 9:30 and 10:45 a.m. in COMMUNITY GRACE BRETHREN, 5885 Downey Ave., Long Beach. They are on an 11-week summer tour.

A Spring Concert featuring vocal and instrumental solos will be held Sunday 4 p.m. in LONG BEACH UNITED CHAPEL, 935 E. Broadway.

Dove Sound will provide the music tonight at 7 for Shekinah Fellowship in NEIGHBORHOOD CHURCH, 2416 E. 11th St.

"The Secret Sayings of Jesus" is the lecture topic of Dr. Stephan Hoeller Sunday, 3 p.m. at THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY, in YWCA building, Pacific and Sixth.

A farewell reception will be held Sunday, 3 p.m. for Rev. Dr. Earl W. Isbell, pastor of COMPTON FIRST UNITED METHODIST, 1025 S. Long Beach Blvd. to honor his 13 years of leadership and community service.

ing, I left the Journal to become a minister. The world of newspapers always fascinated me and it was quite a wrench to leave it to go into the ministry. Coincidentally, I hadn't been gone from the Journal a year when it folded and went out of business. But I never heard anyone attribute that failure to my departure.

Years later, Roger Ferger, president of the Cincinnati Enquirer, became my close friend. One day at lunch in the Queen City Club he suggested that I write a weekly column for the Enquirer and, subsequently, for many other papers large and small as well.

In this way an old newsboy whose fingers still smelled of printer's ink, something no old newsboy could possibly wash off even if he tried (which of course he wouldn't) came to write for the paper he once hawked at the courthouse corner in the romantic long ago.

So proudly I claim to be once a newsboy, always a newsboy. And perhaps that is truer than it may appear, for as a minister I am still crying the news. For, as you know, the word Gospel means good news.

Newsboys young and old are a great and rare breed of boys and men. Salutations and greetings, newsboys forever!

'Secret Gospel of Mark'

Another 'scholar,' another outlandish book on Jesus

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

You can count on it. Every few years, some "scholar" will stir up a short-lived sensation by publishing a book which says something outlandish about Jesus.

The "scholar" usually has no standing as a Bible student, theologian, archaeologist, or in any other field related to serious study of religious questions.

But that need not hold him back. If he has a job — any job — on a university faculty, his "findings" will be treated respectfully in the press as a "scholarly work."

The latest example of this syndrome is a book entitled "Clement of Alexandria and a Secret Gospel of Mark," by Morton Smith, a history professor at Columbia.

In a Greek Orthodox monastery near Jerusalem, Smith found a fragment of manuscript which he has identified, to his own satisfaction, as a letter written in the latter part of the Second Century by Bishop Clement of Alexandria, one of the most respected of the early church fathers. The note refers to a "secret" version of the gospel according to Mark.

Piling inference upon presumption, Smith has persuaded himself that this "secret gospel" shows there were two kinds of members in the early Christian church — the great mass, who were kept in the dark about "real secrets," and a few inner-circle types who were initiated into more recondite mysteries.

One of those mysteries, says Smith, on the basis of conjecture, was that Jesus was neither a messiah, nor even a courageous teacher who laid down His life to tell men the truth, but a slick "miracle-working magician."

The amazing thing about all these debunk-Jesus books is that they accept as much of the recorded Gospels as they find convenient to sustain their thesis, and then blandly ignore or repudiate other parts of the very same documents which are directly contradictory to their pet notion.

The same technique was used a few years ago in a widely-sold book called "The Passover Plot" (also by a "scholar") which depicted Jesus' crucifixion as the miscarriage of a tricky political maneuver by Jesus and His Disciples.

The ultimate depths of absurdity were reached in a more recent book by a British "scholar" who sought to establish (by heavily editing the Gospels) that Jesus really wasn't a person: He was a mushroom, used by a hallucinogenic cult.

Anyone who takes this sort of bilge seriously probably deserves to be "upset" about it. The really startling fact about Jesus is that 2,000 years after He lived and taught as in itinerant rabbi in an obscure corner of the Roman Empire and died a criminal's death, men, including university professors, are still trying to denigrate Him and explain Him away.

How many magicians do you know who've had that kind of impact on history?

Methodist meet passes

Watergate resolution

United Methodist churches from four states reacted to the Watergate case this week by protesting "the irresponsible and dangerous misuse of power by administrations of both political parties for many years" and called upon congregations to become involved in political and social issues.

Following a 45-minute debate on the issue, and efforts to tone down the proposed position, members of the denomination's Southern California-Arizona Annual Conference adopted the statement at Redlands by a vote of 724 to 143, with 26 persons abstaining.

The statement sought to correct a "mistaken assumption" that many people cannot influence governmental processes.

"We acknowledge our guilt as individuals and as a religious community in our failure to both see and confront the pervasiveness of dishonesty and corruption in our society," the statement continued.

It also protested "the arrogant misuse of money, power and position to influence and subvert the elective process."

VERSATILE FLO PRICE HERE

Flo Price, Christian songwriter, vocalist and hostess of the national television program for children "Treehouse Club," will present a concert of contemporary sacred music Sunday, 7 p.m. in First Baptist Church, 10th Street and Pine Avenue, with all invited. She has starred in five movies, including "Beloved Enemy" and her song, "Bright New World" was featured in "The Cross and the Switchblade." She was chosen best female vocalist by the National Evangelical Film Foundation in 1970.

Witnesses will meet twice in L.A. stadium

Jehovah's Witnesses will meet in international convention in Los Angeles' Dodger Stadium for five days starting Wednesday. Because of the large number of delegates to be accommodated, explains convention spokesman William D. Couch, the entire program will be repeated at Dodger Stadium July 18-22.

An identical program will be staged at the Forum in Inglewood for 17,000 Spanish-speaking delegates starting Wednesday. Altogether, more than 100,000 attendance is expected in Los Angeles.

Jehovah's Witnesses are holding 69 assemblies in 46 countries this year. The theme of next week, Couch says, is Divine Victory. "The program," he says, "will stress our belief in the certainty of divine intervention in human affairs as a permanent solution for man's problems."

Navy chaplain 30 years does some summing up

By LES RODNEY

Chaplain John Hill Markley, Capt. USN, peered back through three wars and an endless stream of young service men to Fresno, December, 1942.

That's when he switched from the pastoral ministry at Sierra Vista Methodist Church to join the Navy Chaplain Corps.

"It's hard to answer why I did it," the 60-year-old minister said this week, shortly before hanging up his whites and calling it a career, "because I never felt I was becoming anything but what I already was. I was just going to where our country was sending so many of its men. If they didn't have enough clergy along with them to have the opportunity to worship, then they'd have been denied that opportunity, wouldn't they?"

THREE DECADES of helping provide that opportunity took Chaplain Markley to the Solomon Islands and New Guinea, aboard the USS Chicago and Atlanta in China waters after the war, to various locales as a depot chaplain, along with the first Marines to hit Korea, where he was awarded a Bronze Star, on the USS Bennington when it rushed to the Quemoy-Matsu mini-crisis, through many years with men heading for and returning from Vietnam, and finally to Long Beach Naval Hospital as chaplain.

Though his face is one any Hollywood director would love for a tough career military type, and though either way of addressing him is correct, there is nothing about him that would make an interviewer call him "captain" rather than "chaplain." The little cross on the uniform shoulderboard remains the operative insignia.

Ask him what differences he notes between the kind of youngster a chaplain encountered then and now, and the minister doesn't take long emerging over the Navy man.

"I think," he began slowly, "there was more patriotic idealism in World War Two, and more practical idealism now, which asks questions. The young man in 1973 not only wants to know how and where, but why. Which is good. He's more honest in his questions, and much more sincerely looking for purpose in life."

Which last, he believes, also provides a clue to the answer to another question, whether today's servicemen is more or less open to religious influence.

Markley warmed to a favorite theme, the need for love to go with discipline. He is far from being an advocate of permissiveness, but...

"I'll put it this way. A child who grows up in a home with patriotic zeal in which there is love makes a good serviceman. In a home where there is only the zeal, you have fanaticism, and the reaction of the children is not always good." The chaplain sighed. "I had a father recently who caught his 17-year-old son with marijuana. He threw the boy out of the house. Poorest thing he could have done."

WOULD TODAY's more thoughtful youngster coming into the service be less prejudiced racially than his predecessor of yesteryear?

The chaplain didn't have a quick answer to that one.

"I think prejudice is handed down, it's learned from parents and from society. The only way to change it is with experience, maybe cataclysmic experience, the kind that changes your whole attitude toward life."

He wouldn't say that the Navy is free of prejudice, or even that he hasn't encountered a few chaplains who fall short of grace in this respect. "Every man," he said, "reacts from generations of prejudices where he came from. But it isn't in any sense from the Navy that the prejudice comes. If anything, the Navy lessens it.

"Look, I've often conducted services in the Navy where it was about 50 per cent racial mix. And I don't have to tell you how many civilian church services are 100 per cent Caucasian. I find the military man more ready to accept integration. A man coming into the service is much more likely to change than if he stayed in civilian life. They live together, chow together, die together, must depend on each other..."

He smiled. "Archie Bunker helps us to see ourselves."

His own father, a Methodist minister, Markley related, "was buried wearing a signet ring given to him by Jewish people of southern Missouri, whom he actively befriended at a time of some anti-Semitism."

"WE GREW UP in a mining community, my parents took in three young girls who were tossed out of their homes when they became pregnant out of wedlock. I had five sisters of my own." He paused. "I think that which hurts me more than anything is not being able to make myself acceptable, understood, by those of other faiths and cultures. This is at the seat of our problems."

"You know, if I were to question one thing today about the younger generation and its religion, it would be in a misunderstanding of what the word love should mean. It's meaningless if it's just a word. Like if you love the drug victim, but do nothing for him. You love the minority person but you won't be charitable, you don't put the love into action."

"If I've learned one thing in the military and in life it is that simple religious zeal without charity is just fanaticism."

Did his Navy Hospital chaplaincy work these past three years differ markedly from his other duty?

Markley nodded. "The difference in hospital work, I find myself providing more the equivalent of a pastoral ministry, ongoing, often terminal. Is there an answer to the question 'why me?' from someone who is suffering? I must have the answer to the question, is life ultimately good. You get every basic question of life thrown at you. If you had no religion yourself, it would drive you crazy."

FINALLY, inevitably, Vietnam. A sigh.

"Were the kids confused? ALL of us were confused. Even those in charge didn't think they had all the answers. I believe in abiding by your conscience, but I also recognize that only when the government becomes immoral do I have to make a moral choice. We were trying morally to save for the South Vietnamese the same right to exist as the North Vietnamese. Many of us looking at it felt there was basically no moral choice to be made over there, but our country found itself embroiled, with a moral motivation."

He has heard the arguments which challenge America's morality in Vietnam, he says, and has listened to them with respect.

"I must weigh the history of our country, our background and our past. Look at the Philippines, at Japan. When we fought, we didn't fight to take things from others. This is the country of Jefferson, of Lincoln..."

He concedes that among the young men who evaded the draft were those who acted out of conscience. "I personally would have no difficulty in granting total amnesty to such men. I think deserters from the Armed Forces must suffer the consequences of their action. For those who dodged the draft, in general I think the country has a right to ask them to show some expression of love for their country, in a way that would be both constitutional and meaningful. Well, I guess I'd like to see them each come before a tribunal of just people, to present their motivation for consideration."

THE MARKLEYS have three grown children and two smaller adopted ones. They'll move with the latter two to the Dallas area, where Mrs. Markley's mother lives.

"She's the only one left of our parents," the chaplain said. He grinned in awareness of mother-in-law humor. "She's great, I like to be around her myself. I rate her equal with my own mother."

Son John, he recited, graduated from Southern Methodist (his own theological alma mater), is into computer science, and enlisted in the Navy, where he is a lieutenant. Martha is in Boulder, Colo., where her husband works, and is raising a family of her own. Mary is going for her masters degree at Long Beach State. The little ones are Bishop ("I figured that's one way we'd get a bishop in the family") and Marty, a girl.

And now that he's leaving the Chaplain Corps, what changes would he suggest for it?

"The uniform," he replied promptly. "It can be a barrier in communication, in both directions. I'd like to see staff officers wear something sig-

Briefly... At big Key rally, El Dorado team

Among the many groups at the star-studded Key 73 youth rally in the Los Angeles Coliseum today at 5 p.m. will be the controversial Jews for Jesus, led by spokesman Moishe Rosen, who will speak, and a musical group calling itself "The Liberated Wailing Wall."

The group is down from the San Francisco area, where they are headquartered. They maintain it is possible to be both fully Jewish and fully Christian, and to cherish all Jewish traditions while accepting Jesus as the Messiah.

director of the Commission on Interfaith Activities of Reform Judaism. It shows the mistake, he says, of those who have "sought to justify religion's non-involvement with the affairs of the market place, the courthouse, the political arena."

"Religion has to be the goad and guardian of America's behavior," he holds, "not simply in terms of what people do, or do not drink, see, or read, but in protecting each individual's basic freedoms. That is what real patriotism means. There is no salvation in placing trust in messiah-like figures, religious or political, who promise relief from the difficulties of life if only you trust in them."

LECTURER "Why Put Up With Fear?" is the title of a free public lecture Sunday, 3 p.m. in First Church of Christ, Scientist, 440 Elm Ave., by Gordon F. Campbell, who became a Christian Science lecturer after a career in business and music.

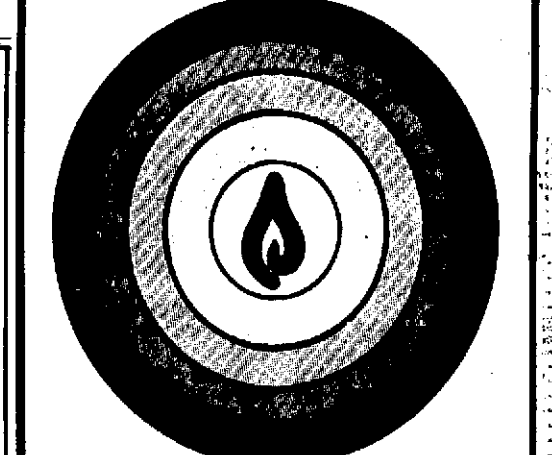

REVS. WILLIAM Miedema and Kenneth Leestma both went into the 21st year of their ministry this week. They attended the same schools and church throughout their young life in Grand Rapids, Mich., were both graduated from Hope College and Western Theological Seminary in Holland, Mich., and two years ago were re-united when Leestma accepted a call to El Dorado Park Community Church as minister of lay development.

The church on Norwalk Boulevard, affiliated with the old Reformed Church in America, which dates back to the first Dutch arrivals before the Revolution, has flourished since pioneering the drive-in, walk-in concept in Long Beach. Ground has been broken for a three-story education unit to complete the physical plant.

DOES WATERGATE show that advocates of "social action" are right, and those who insist that religion should "stay out of politics" are wrong? Such is the opinion of Rabbi Balfour Brickner.

Members of the California State Spiritualist Assn. will gather Tuesday for their 78th annual convention, set for four days in Hollywood's Roosevelt Hotel. Sessions Wednesday through Friday at 7:30 p.m. are open to the public, with mediums demonstrating psychic phenomena, according to the association.

Christian Science

How do you know God exists?

Once you have felt His guidance and healing power in your life, you know. People who have been helped and healed through understanding God's presence share their experiences at our Wednesday meetings. They tell how Christianity has become a practical, operative force in their lives.

There are thoughtful readings from the Bible and from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy.

As you listen, you begin to see that God is real, that He loves you, that His power can be felt in your life. You're always welcome.

The Trinity is Biblical. There is one God in 3 offices, Father, Son and Holy Spirit. I John 5:7 says, "For there are 3 that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word and the Holy Spirit and these 3 are one."

I am a trinity, but only one person. I am a father to my sons, a husband to my wife and a son to my mother. But, I am only one man. Why is it difficult to believe in one God who functioned fully at the same time in 3 different offices? The Lord, our God, is one God. He labors in 3 offices. This is Biblical.

DR. FRANK COLLINS
Sin is more than a defect; it is corruption. It is not like a stain or cut which mars a tapestry, but rather it is like mildew which permeates the fabric with its fungoid growth, utterly spoiling it. Nor are sin's ravages confined to the personality and experience of man; the entire creation is affected. The struggle that man has to live in this world is part of the consequence of sin. There is only one way that this can be relieved. There must be a recreation. "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature." To receive Christ is to receive a new nature. Not only is there a new nature, there is the promise of a new body. All that is lost in the first Adam is reclaimed in the second Adam — Christ.
Calvary is the place to find Christ.
Come to Calvary, Calvary is for you.

ASTRONAUTS AILING

The astronauts ended their long mission with an on-target splashdown in the Pacific ocean about 830 miles southwest of San Diego.

The astronauts were well enough to walk, wave and laugh as they strolled with unsteady steps across the deck of this ship.

The symptoms of the de-conditioning ailments appeared most strongly during extensive examinations in a mobile medical laboratory on this carrier, Hawkins said.

Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz left behind them in orbit a salvaged space station which is ready for the planned 56-day missions of the Skylab 2 and 3 crews. When the men of Skylab 1 boarded the orbiting laboratory 28 days earlier, it was overheated, underpowered and seemed destined for failure. But in a series of daring repair efforts, the astronauts patched up the ailing spaceship.

They also returned with 80 per cent of their assigned science mission completed. They brought with them biological samples and thousands of feet of film and tape which experts believe will provide precious new knowledge about the sun, the earth and about man himself.

Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz undocked their Apollo command ship from the end of the Skylab space station early Friday morning and started their homeward journey from 275 miles in orbit.

They guided the command ship through a series of rocket firings which slowed it down and brought it soaring through the atmosphere on a fiery path to earth.

Three bright orange and white parachutes blossomed above the craft at 10,000 feet, and the straining nylon mushrooms lowered the fire-streaked spaceship to the precise pinpoint splashdown.

Because of medical concern about the deconditioning effect on the astronauts after four weeks in space, provisions had been made to remove the astronauts from the command ship on stretchers.

Quick medical tests by Kerwin, a physician, however, removed any question about the spacemen being carried.

Conrad, then Weitz and finally Kerwin climbed unsteadily through a spacecraft hatch while the ship's band played "Anchors Aweigh" for the all-Navy crew.

The astronauts, wearing flight suits and blue baseball-style caps, walked on rubbery legs, with doctors hovering at their elbows.

SENATORS BRAWL

after the epithet was repeated, Richardson said, "I smacked him in the mouth."

He said he bloodied Marks' lip, and described the blow as "just a little short seven-inch punch, that's all."

He said Marks then tried to rush him, and "I just knocked him down and put a knee on his chest."

"He doesn't know much about fighting," Richardson said.

AFTER letting Marks off the floor, Richardson said, he went into a nearby senators' coffee room and Marks followed him, still cursing. There were several senators in the room, Richardson said.

He said he decided to leave the area rather than pursue the still heated conversation, and returned to his office.

Marks, after learning that Richardson had described the encounter, then gave his version. It varied only in that he said Richardson had come to his desk and asked him if "this is the bill you're trying to put over on us."

He said Richardson said "We're going to watch you, Marks, we're going to watch everything you do."

Richardson did not say who "we" was, Marks said.

Marks said he may have called Richardson an ass at that point, but was not sure.

HE SAID it "may have been a mistake" for him to go over to Richardson's desk, but said he wanted to explain his position.

He said he invited Richardson into the lounge where they could discuss the matter without disturbing other senators, and that once there "the temperature was rising. I was frustrated because I couldn't get him to listen to me."

He said there was swearing on both sides, and the conversation developed into a shouting match," whereupon he hit me."

Marks said he was not hurt, and was not contemplating a lawsuit.

HE SAID he was unhappy that news of the encounter had leaked out, saying "it magnifies something that the two of us can settle, and I don't see any point in making a big issue of it."

The two senators, although both Republicans, are generally far apart on most issues. Marks is considered a liberal — the bill over which the fracas developed dealt with a proposed state appropriation of $25 million to back up summer job programs for youth, which have been funded in the past with federal money the Nixon administration has now cut off.

Richardson is a conservative, who regularly objects to spending tax monies for such projects.

Richardson was elected in 1966, and Marks in 1967 following one year as a judge after eight years as an assemblyman.

Victims in the shooting were Tustin Police Officer Waldron G. Karp, 31, and Deputy Timothy Stewart, 34. Karp died of his wounds Jan. 7.

The jury also convicted Johnson of assault with a deadly weapon in the shooting of the deputy. This charge also involved the shots the defendant fired into the home of a woman who had summoned the officers to the scene.

The shootot climaxed a disturbance call which originated after Johnson went to the home of his estranged wife, where an argument ensued. He broke off the argument, left and returned with a high-powered rifle, opening fire when he found the officers at the scene.

Karp wounded Johnson with a shotgun blast before the defendant's shots felled him.

The officer made up a number, they added, and approached the group for directions. He then saw that one of the persons on the blanket strongly resembled the fugitive.

Police said Denham strolled back around the building, told the other officers of the suspect's location, and the group started back for the arrest.

The suspect had left, police said, so the officers briefly waited inside an empty apartment until he reappeared, then approached and identified themselves. Cole was booked at Long Beach jail as an escaped prisoner.

Seen setting stage for prosecution

Nixon tactic in aide firing reported

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH

WASHINGTON — Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen urged President Nixon on April 15 to suspend John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman immediately because of their involvement in the Watergate scandal, sources close to the case said Friday.

Nixon announced the "resignations" of the two officials two weeks later, on April 30, but emphasized that his action should not be "seen by anyone as evidence of any wrongdoing by either one."

At a meeting on April 15, the sources said, Petersen and Richard G. Kleindienst, the attorney general then, gave the President a briefing on new evidence that had been uncovered by federal prosecutors.

EXCLUSIVE
N.Y. TIMES SERVICE

The evidence allegedly showed that Haldeman, the former White House chief of staff, and Ehrlichman, the former domestic adviser, had been leaders of a widespread cover-up of the bugging of the Democratic headquarters in June, 1972.

In his April 30 speech on Watergate, Nixon described Haldeman and Ehrlichman as "two of the finest public servants it has been my privilege to know."

"Each of these men has demonstrated a spirit of selflessness and dedication that I have seldom seen equaled," the President said in a separate statement. "Their contributions to the work of this administration have been enormous."

A high White House official, asked why the President waited two weeks before requesting the resignations, said only that "there would be no comment at this time."

Other sources with close White House connections said, however, that Nixon had been angered and distressed by the report from Petersen, whom he placed in charge of the Watergate inquiry one month before.

In the two weeks following his meeting with Petersen and Kleindienst, the President "developed a very active policy of playing one White House aide off against another," one source said. "He was creating an environment in which the prosecution could carry out its investigation."

"WHEN the whole story unfolds," this source added, "it will become very evident that the President used that period (between April 15 and April 30) very wisely to help the government develop evidence."

This account of Nixon's attitude and activity could not be confirmed elsewhere, although another official said that "the whole story would not embarrass the President."

This official added that the President's public words of support for his two top aides on April 30 have been given too much emphasis. "What he was doing was sacking his own loyal crowd," the official said. "He gave them as good a send-off as he could."

Other sources said that the three original federal prosecutors — Earl J. Silbert, Seymour Glazer and Donald E. Campbell — first learned of the alleged extensive cover-up involvement of Haldeman and Ehrlichman from John W. Dean III, the former White House counsel who began talking in late March about his role.

Businessman refutes Magruder on convention deal kickbacks

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — Responding to "kickback" charges by Jeb Stuart Magruder, an East Coast businessman said Friday that both political parties were interested in his scheme to share profits on an exposition at the 1972 presidential conventions.

The businessman, Walter L. Scott, told UPI he canceled the plans later when investigations of International Telephone and Telegraph's (ITT) alleged offer of $400,000 for the Republican national convention led him to believe he would get similar adverse publicity.

Scott heads the Financial Marketing Services Co., Stamford, Conn., and the Columbia Exposition Co., New York. He proposed establishing "an exposition of the American economy" at both conventions, which were held in Miami Beach, Fla.

Scott said he approached both parties, proposing to sell 360 booths for $5,000 each, or a total of $1.8 million. Under the agreement, which was designed to circumvent federal laws barring corporations from contributing directly to political campaigns, each party would have received $1 million and Scott $400,000, and expenses would have amounted to $400,000.

Other developments: — In San Jose, Costa Rica, a court refused to extradite financier Robert L. Vesco to the United States as requested by the U.S. government.

Vesco, along with former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans and lawyer Harry L. Sears, are under indictment in connection with a $200,000 contribution to the 1972 Nixon campaign.

Mitchell, Stans and Sears have pleaded innocent to the charges.

The Senate Watergate committee will meet in closed session Monday prior to public testimony by ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III to consider a request from former Attorney General John N. Mitchell's lawyer that Mitchell not be required to testify publicly. It was expected the committee would reject the request and call Mitchell for public questioning following Dean's testimony which could take several days.

— Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., the committee chairman, reportedly was drafting guidelines on how much of Dean's papers dealing with national security may be disclosed during his appearance. Dean will begin his testimony with a 150-page statement that the committee staff does not expect to receive until late Sunday night or early Monday morning.

— The Washington Star-News quoted Senate sources as saying that the White House submitted questions to the Senate committee to ask Dean, along with a description of conversations that Dean had with Nixon. The newspaper quoted one committee source as saying, "There's nothing new in them."

On the conventions deal, Scott said he sent 150 companies — "I went straight down the Fortune 500 list" — brochures billing the show as "your opportunity to meet and motivate the decision-makers of the biggest market in the world."

PALOS VERDES FIRE

it hard on helicopter pilots who tried to drop borate solution on hot spots. Often, firemen said, the pilots wouldn't be able to see the flames for the smoke.

Flames eventually blackened the south face of the Peninsula, reaching Palos Verdes Drive South and burning up to the walls of the Frank Lloyd Wright-designed Wayfarer's Chapel. The fire prompted a wedding party in the chapel to leave as soon as the couple were pronounced man and wife.

Fire areas were sealed off to nonresident civilians by sheriff's deputies. About 75 deputies were on duty at the fire scene, and two sheriff's helicopters stood by to assist with rescues.

Horsemen from the sheriff's mounted posse were on hand to help the county Animal Control department round up stray horses or house pets.

Portuguese Bend was a scene of anxiety and confusion Friday night. One false rumor after another about gutted houses was passed among neighbors.

Many residents were ready to evacuate their houses, though evacuations never were ordered. "People have their cars in their driveways, pointed out," Mrs. Joyce Christopher said.

Foxes, skunks and jackrabbits ran through yards to escape the flames.

One area that was overrun by flames was the Pony Club camp at Narcissa Drive and Fruit Tree Road in Portuguese Bend. Sixty youngsters from throughout Southern California had been camped there for the third day of an equestrian meeting when the flames came.

"We got them all out, but they had to leave their gear here," an unidentified woman neighbor said.

At one moment the area around the Pony Club appeared safe from flames. Then a crackling sound was heard up the slope, and suddenly orange flames broke through the gray cloud of smoke.

Newspaper photographer Ron Carlson stopped to take a long-distance shot of a fire crew fighting the blaze. He stood his ground and snapped pictures as the flames grew closer. A second later a strong wind blast torched nearby trees and brush, and Carlson was cut off from the fire crew and paved roads.

He retreated down a narrow dirt road. "The fire chased me all the way down to Palos Verdes Drive South," he said.

Meanwhile, a fireman at the same scene pulled up a small pumper truck to fight the blaze.

He played out hose, then looked back to see his truck was about to be burned. He ran to the truck and drove it off just before a wall of flame swept through.

Rampaging Dodgers sink Cincy in 10, 3-2

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

The man doing the talking was very critical of Bill Buckner.

"He's an idiot. He batted .319 last year and all he does this year is change things... the bat, the stance... everything, Bill Buckner is an idiot."

No, the Dodgers' Bill

Buckner isn't going around looking for his critic. Bill Buckner was the man doing the talking.

"Finally," he said, "I got lucky. It's about time."

It was Buckner who slammed a two-out single in the 10th inning Friday night, scoring Steve Yeager with the winning run as the Dodgers clipped Cincinnati, 3-2, for their seventh consecutive victory, 12th in their last 15 and eighth out of 11 in extra innings.

The victory, played before a howling crowd of 37,224 at Dodger Stadium, enabled the Dodgers to retain their three-game lead over San Francisco in the Western Division of the National League while defending champion Cincinnati fell seven games off the pace.

The Dodgers were one out away from a 2-0 victory as Don Sutton had wheeled through the Reds for eight innings, allowing only three hits. But in the ninth a single by Dan Driessen and a home run by Johnny Bench dramatically tied the game.

"I feel sorry for Sutton," Buckner said of the Dodger ace who now has tossed up 13 home run pitches. "It's a shame we didn't get him more runs. He's probably one of the best — if not THE best — pitcher in the National League right now."

Sutton struck out 10 Reds, giving him 100 strikeouts for the season, tying Philadelphia's Steve Carlton for the league lead.

If Sutton's luck is bad, Buckner's has been worse.

A man who batted .319 a year ago, Buckner has been fighting this year to get above .270. He's been hitting the ball — he's tanned only 17 times in 299 at bats — but he's been hitting in tough luck.

"I was going to try something different," he said of his 10th inning appearance with Yeager standing at third base. "I had the feeling he (losing pitcher Clay Carroll) was going to throw a fast ball low and away. I decided to move up in the box. It was just a lucky play."

Buckner's sharp single fell at the feet of charging leftfielder Pete Rose and Yeager easily scored.

Yeager opened the 10th with a single, something less than a tape-measure blow as the ball bloomed over the head of Carroll and in front of shortstop Dave Concepcion.

Pete Richert, who earned the victory by working out of a jam in the 10th, then successfully bunted Yeager to second.

Von Joshua batted for slumping Dave Lopes and grounded out to second baseman Joe Morgan as Yeager advanced to third. Buckner then sent his liner over the head of Concepcion to win the game.

The Dodgers provided Sutton with his two-run lead in the second inning with four successive singles — by Ron Cey, Manny Mota, Willie Crawford and Bill Russell — and a sacrifice fly by Yeager.

Sutton, meantime, restricted Cincinnati to just three hits and not once permitted a runner past second.

Bench changed all that with his 14th home run which landed high in the right-centerfield pavilion.

A single and a walk followed and Jim Brewer was summoned. He struck out Concepcion to get out of the ninth but immediately got into trouble in the Reds' 10th when Larry Stahl opened with a single and was sacrificed to second by Carroll. Brewer then walked Rose and Richert replaced Brewer.

Richert got out of it when Joe Morgan lined out to left and Driessen grounded out.

Russell offered some consolation to Sutton

A genuine team victory for Angels

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

TWIN CITIES - Bobby Winkles made a shameful confession late Friday night. "I didn't have any moves left," he said, his face wreathed in a satisfied smile.

No wonder.

For nine innings at Metropolitan Stadium Friday, Winkles made more moves than Bekins. Or maybe a go-go dancer.

Against the Minnesota Twins Winkles employed three catchers, three shortstops, two second basemen, two right fielders, three pinch-hitters and two pinch-runners.

In all, he used 19 of his available 24 bodies (including pitchers) and it all added up to a dramatic 4-3 victory over the Twins.

"The only thing I could think to do in the ninth inning," Winkles laughed, "was to look out on the field and see if we had nine guys out there. Frank Robinson told me it looked as if we had all the positions covered so I felt a lot better."

For eight innings, the Angels were embarrassed by a team which wasn't even a reasonable facsimile of the Twins.

ANGEL OF DAY

There was no Harmon Killebrew, no Tony Oliva, no Rod Carew.

In their stead were the anonymous faces and undistinguished names of Jerry Terrell, Mike Adams and Danny Monzon — people known only to their immediate families.

But there at the end of eight was the brutal truth — Minnesota 3, Angels 1. But with a deft piece of timing, the Angels won it in the ninth.

Mike Epstein, the proud owner of new glasses which, hopefully, permit him to see, led off with a single and Richie Scheinblum, the remarkable hitting man, followed suit.

Then Ken Berry dropped a sacrifice bunt — something the Angels have been unable to do in recent weeks.

A single by Al Gallagher scored one run and forced the eviction of Minnesota starter Joe Decker, who had entered the game with a 5.29 ERA. He was replaced by Ken Sanders, whose ERA was even worse — 5.30.

Bob Oliver, a resident of the bench for the last couple of days, was invited to pinch-hit for Art Kusnyer and King Ollie rammed a single to left, knotting the score at 3-3.

After Winston Llenas fled out, Sandy Alomar drilled a single up the middle to drive home pinch-runner Jerry DaVanon with the winning run.

Dave Sells, who took over for Rudy May in the seventh and worked out of a bases-loaded, one-out predicament, was rewarded with his third victory. Decker, who really deserved better, suffered the loss.

For Oliver, his key base hit was the stroke of atonement.

He had requested use of the park in the early afternoon for extra hitting but had been denied by the Twins.

Ed Ratleff (right) flashes million dollar smile as Ray Patterson watches.

RATLEFF'S TEAM STYLE WORTH $1.5 MILLION

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

It is apparent, in Jerry Tarkanian's mind, that the Houston Rockets did their homework on Ed Ratleff.

"When I look back at the great success we had because of Eddie I realize that anyone who only saw him play once or twice couldn't appreciate everything he contributes to the game," said Tarkanian, who has left Long Beach State to become head basketball coach at Nevada-Las Vegas.

"There are players who make more spectacular shots or get more sensational rebounds, but through 40 minutes of basketball Eddie is doing all the things that help you win the game."

Ratleff's contributions to Long Beach State's 74-12 record during his three-year varsity career did not go unnoticed by Houston officials.

They signed Ratleff, a two-time unanimous first-team all-America, to a $1.5 million contract Friday morning.

"Johnny (Rocket coach Johnny Egan) and I have had conversations about Eddie since last season," Rocket president Ray Patterson said. "We were always hopeful Eddie would be available when our turn (sixth) came in the draft but we had such respect for him we didn't think he would be."

"We're trying to develop the same type of team concept that the Knicks and Boston have been so successful with," said Patterson, "and Ed fits perfectly into that philosophy. If we had chosen first, we would have taken Ratleff. He's got everything you can ask of a player. He has a fine mental attitude and he's very consistent, much like Oscar Robertson. He does it all, effortlessly."

Patterson admitted that the Rockets aren't sure where Ratleff will play.

"We chose him because he could play guard or forward for us," said Patterson. "We will likely use him at guard first because we think he will compliment Mike Newlin, who is an aggressive type player. But we also see Ratleff playing the same type of forward we get from Jack Marin."

Ratleff, his mother, Mrs. Barbara Crump, and his attorney, Don Dyer, were in Houston Friday to announce the signing.

"It is really an exciting contract," said Dyer, whose client was also chosen in the first round of the ABA draft by Denver.

"It was a difficult decision to make," said Ratleff, who flew to Houston from his hometown of Columbus, Ohio. "I have a lot of respect for Denver and its coach, Alex Hannum. I'm just glad it's over. Now, maybe I can get some rest."

Ratleff flew back to Columbus Friday. He and two of his former Columbus East High School teammates, Nicky Conner of Illinois and Dwight Lamar of Southwest Louisiana, are helping in a city co-ordinated summer basketball camp.

Queen of Long Beach links Stanley regains crown

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

If modesty was a faulty golf swing, Millie Stanley would be a 30-handicap.

She fairly bubbled over with humility after regaining the Long Beach City women's championship she surrendered to Jane Becker one year ago.

One mention of her radar-like putting, deft chipping, miraculous trouble shots or over-all competence at the game and her tanned face flushed nearly the shade of her flaming crimson blouse.

To Mrs. Stanley, the 2-1 victory over her longtime friend and opponent was nothing more than a long walk in the hot sun. Recreation Park's fairways, greens and even a few trees were hers to conquer Friday.

Her play was not spectacular, just consistent — one-under par for 17 holes. She hit only 10 greens in regulation figures, but only once did she fail to scramble for her par.

Three times she needed longer-than-gimme putts to halve the hole—a four-footer at No. 3, three-footer at 8 and six-footer at 16. A tree impeded her backswing on the first hole, yet she got within 17 feet of the cup. She was under a limb on No. 7 for par and tangled with the eucalyptus stand on 10 before gaining par.

On the short (281 yards) par-4 13, Millie left her drive alongside a pine. She had an uphill lie and could barely see the pin, but the native of Hawaii punched a 6-iron onto the green. Her long approach putt ran past the cup and it took a clutch seven-footer to halve the hole.

Mrs. Stanley took a 1-up lead at 14, sinking a 10-footer for par while Mrs. Becker three-putted, missing her par from only two feet. Later the winner called that hole a turning point.

"That green is the toughest for me to putt and Jane's ball was bouncing bumpy-bump the whole way," she said.

"But looking at the entire round, the real turning point might have been the first two holes."

"We were both nervous at the start and I felt my lowest at the second hole. I was only eight feet from the hole and I could hardly bring my putter back."

Millie came up two feet short on that try, but won the hole and went two-up when Jane committed her first of three three-putt greens for a double-bogey 6.

What Mrs. Becker thought was a slight case of sunstroke for her 11-year-old daughter Dena turned into a case of mononucleosis Thursday. Jane spent a sleepless night.

"I'm not saying I wouldn't have won, but I think the outcome might

Aaron's 692nd sparks Atlanta

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Henry Aaron hammered out career home run No. 692 and drove in another run with a single Friday night to lead Atlanta to a 7-3 victory over San Diego.

Dave Johnson also homered for the Braves, clubbing his 15th in the eighth inning with two on.

Aaron's homer was his 18th of the year, and the hit put him fourth on the all-time list behind Ty Cobb, Stan Musial and Tris Speaker. The Atlanta slugger now has 3,432 career hits, just 82 shy of Speaker who is third.

Phil Niekro gained the victory, his seventh against four setbacks. Rookie Randy Jones, making his first major league start, was the loser.

The Padres made the most of two Atlanta errors in the first inning to take a 2-0 lead, but Aaron's roundtripper in the second narrowed the Atlanta deficit to 2-1. His two-out single in the sixth tied the game 2-2. That hit drove in Ralph Garr who had singled and stole second.

The Braves broke the tie in the seventh. Dick Dietz opened with a single and Frank Tepedino ran for him. Johnny Oates grounded a single to right to put Tepedino on third and he scored as Marty Perez hit into a double play.

Four reject Wimbledon boycott

LONDON (AP) —Bookies made Ilie Nastase of Romania a 1-2 favorite Friday to win Wimbledon after 67 of the world's leading stars walked out of the tournament which begins Monday.

Bitterness began building up among the players after the Association of Tennis Professionals had confirmed the boycott to protest the ouster of Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia.

Four ATP members — Nastase, Roger Taylor of Britain and South Africans Bob Maud and Byron Bertram — defied the association and told Wimbledon officials they would play.

Astros can't contain Goodson: 2 H R, 5 RBI

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ed Goodson drove in all San Francisco's runs with a pair of homers Friday night, powering the Giants to a 5-1 victory over the Houston Astros.

Goodson hit a three-run shot with two out in the first inning off Don Wilson (5-7). All three runs were unearned since leadoff batter Bobby Bonds reached on third baseman Doug Rader's error. Tito Fuentes singled and Goodson belted his fifth homer of the season.

That was all the support Jim Barr (5-7) needed. Barr allowed only an unearned run in the second. Bob Watson was safe on Goodson's throwing error, went to second on Lee May's infield single and scored of a single by Rader.

Willie McCovey walked with one out in the seventh and Goodson then belted another homer off reliever Jim Crawford.

Barr finished with a six-hitter and retired the last 15 batters in posting his first victory since May 8 and snapping a personal six-game losing streak. May's single extended his hitting string to a club record 21 games.

Goodson also singled in the fifth and went 3-4 to raise his average to .347.

Yankees rally, shade Detroit

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Murcer's two-run double capped a three-run New York counter-rally in the seventh inning and lifted the streaking Yankees to a 5-4 victory over Detroit Friday night.

The Tigers pounded Fritz Peterson and relief ace Sparky Lyle for four runs in the top of the seventh but Thurman Munson opened the Yankees' half with his ninth home run of the season, cutting the lead to 4-3 and chasing Jim Perry.

Fred Scherman allowed a one-out single to Horace Clarke and a two-out hit to Matty Alou before Murcer doubled to deep left-center for the runs that sealed the Yankees' fifth victory in a row and Detroit's fourth setback. The American League East leaders led 2-0 when Peterson gave way to Lyle after one-out singles by Dick Sharon and Ike Brown. Rodriguez' double to short left drove in the first run. After an intentional walk to Mickey Stanley, Taylor's single to right tied the score but Johnny Callison cut down Rodriguez at the plate for the second out.

The runners, however, moved up a base on the throw and Kaline lashed Lyle's next pitch for a tie-breaking two-run single.

Frank Leahy Notre Dame's second Master

Combined News Services

NEW YORK — Frank Leahy never wanted to be compared to his predecessor Knute Rockne. "There will never be another Rockne," said Leahy, who died in Portland Thursday at the age of 65.

But in memory, that's where he ended, just a short step down from the Notre Dame football immortal of the late 1920s and 1930s.

The day after Leahy's first season at Notre Dame in 1941, he fulfilled a promise to have dinner with the Rev. Wendell Corcoran, a pastor in South Bend, Ind.

Leahy got into his car with Sullivan and Ed McKeever, then his assistant.

"Let's stop at the college for a few minutes and study movies of our last game," Frank said.

"Nothing would intrigue me less," said Sullivan. "If you insist," McKeever said.

"I must insist," Frank replied. "If you get satisfied, the opposition will lick you. They're making plans for next season. So must we."

Leahy's 17-hour-a-day dedication to football gave him a record which fell only slightly short of Rockne's. He had a career mark of 107-13-9 as head coach at Boston College, and then at Notre Dame from 1941 through 1953. That's an .83 percentage, barely below Rockne's .897.

A KNEE INJURY that kept him on the sidelines throughout the final season of his varsity career turned out to be the foundation on which Leahy's coaching brilliance was built. He would have been the starting left tackle. Instead, he sat on the bench with Rockne and soaked up knowledge from The Master. Later, Leahy would come to be known as The Master.

During his stay at the Mayo Clinic, where Rockne had gone for treatment of a leg injury, he told a friend he wanted him to meet a young man named Leahy. Rockne was quoted as telling the friend, "The reason I want you to meet him is that someday he will be recognized as the greatest football coach of all time."

When the friend asked what so exceptional about young Leahy, Rockne replied: "That kid has the greatest football brain I have ever come in contact with. He is simply a genius when it comes to planning ways and means of getting that ball across the goal line and smothering the play of the opponents; take it from me, he is a superstrategist already."

Leahy's college coaching innovations included the double quarterback, having his teams run from an erect stance, optional blocking assignments for linemen on the same running play, and a pass defense against Georgia Tech in 1941 that was employed at the time by most professional teams.

Whereas Rockne was always ready with a wisecrack, Leahy talked in a stilted language filled with platitudes. He used to say he'd be "the happiest Irishman in America" if Notre Dame could win by one point. When his team went out and won by 40 points, the coach Leahy had hoped to beat by one point would boil.

Once Ziggy Czarowski, the all-America tackle, was rumored to be overweight after a summer of idleness. Reporters went to Leahy and received the unsympathetic comment: "If Zigmont does not return to the campus in perfect condition, we shall be obliged to ask him to disassociate himself from our group."

The reporters weren't surprised. That's the way Leahy talked. Ziggy was never Ziggy to the coach, because the players' first name was Zigmont. Luck was never Johnny. He was John.

ONE OF LEAHY'S players recalled that the Irish coach always greeted each player with three stock questions: "How are you? How is your mother, and how much do you weigh?"

One player was ready and blurted out: "Well, I had a serious operation, but I'm doing better."

Leahy nodded and said "Fine."

"She passed away this summer." Again he nodded and said, "Fine."

Then the youngster said, "214," and Leahy came back, "You're four pounds overweight."

In 1927, Leahy came as a student to Notre Dame. When asked why, Leahy said: "Because of Rockne."

It was only 14 years later that he was being mentioned in the same breath as the man he so admired.

APPLYING BODY ENGLISH

Millie Stanley applies some body English to 13-foot attempt at birdie on 14th hole of L.B. City women's championship match with Jane Becker Friday. Putt slid 10 inches past cup, but Mrs. Stanley won hole with par and took match three holes later with birdie.

Defending champion Jane Becker frowns with dismay after missing two-foot putt on 14th hole at Recreation Park Friday. Miscue gave Millie Stanley lead she never relinquished.

"Her mind was everywhere else but the golf course and I just wanted to throw my arms around her and let her know I understood."

Mrs. Becker refused to make any excuses for her play. She was only two over par and showed 31 putts to Millie's 29. She slipped out or nicked the

Gould falters at Santa Clara

SANTA CLARA (UPI) — Young Heather Greenwood of Fresno won the women's 400-meter freestyle and Shirley Babashoff of Huntington Beach tied European record holder Kornelia Ender of Hungary in the 100-meter freestyle Friday to prevent foreign stars from making a runaway of the opening day of competition in the Santa Clara International swimming and diving meet.

Miss Greenwood took the 400 freestyle in 4:22.7 as world record holder and Olympic gold medalist Shane Gould of Australia finished a lethargic fifth, and Miss Babashoff rallied in the final 10 meters to catch Miss Ender in the 100 freestyle in 58.8.

Earlier in the day, in a qualifying heat, Miss Ender lowered the European record to 58.6.

Miss Gould, who also holds the world record in the 100 freestyle, suffered further indignity when she finished ninth and last in a consolation heat of the 100 after failing to qualify for the final.

"Some meets you swim well, and some you don't," said the 16-year-old Miss Gould, who won three Olympic golds, one silver and one bronze at Munich last summer. "This was only my second serious meet of the year and hopefully I'll do better later."

Olympic double gold medal winner Roland Matthes of East Germany won the 100-meter backstroke in 58.2 with young John Naber of Menlo Park, a distant record in 1:00.1; Andrea Gyarmati of Hungary turned the tables on Olympic gold medalist Melissa Belote in the 100-meter backstroke, winning in 1:07.3 to reverse her Olympic loss, and Nobutaka Taguchi of Japan took the 200-meter breaststroke in 2:26.7.

Fezler four-shot Crocker leader; Yancey cards 28 for 9

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — "It's a different feeling this time" Forest Fezler said after establishing a four-stroke lead in the American Golf Classic, "because I've been there before."

"This time I'm a little more relaxed, I'm more confident of what I can do."

Fezler, the tearful victim of a nationally televised loss to Lee Trevino in Florida early this season, ripped five strokes off par with a 65 Friday and bolted into sole control of the lead in this prestigious, $160,000 event.

His 36-hole total of 132 was eight-under-par for two rounds over the Firestone Country Club course, whose 7,180-yard layout makes it one of the longest, toughest courses the touring pros play.

Defending titleholder Bert Yancey blazed over the back nine in seven-under-par 28 and moved into second with a 65 for 136.

"I don't believe it — 28," said Yancey. It was the lowest nine-hole score on the pro tour since 1971 and only one stroke off the modern record of 27, set in 1955 by Mike Souchak.

"It's inexplicable," said Yancey, who said he considered withdrawing after making the turn in 37. He was three over par for the tournament at that stage, but rallied with five birdies and an eagle two-holing a four-iron second shot — and used only 10 putts on the last nine holes.

Fezler is a stocky, hard-hitting 23-year-old who has won almost $60,000 in this, his second year on the tour. Nearly half of it came when he led through 70 holes of the Jackie Gleason Invitational Classic, only to lose when he missed a short putt on the final hole.

"It got me down for a while," said the husky youngster with a wisp of a blond mustache. "I hit that second shot up there about four feet under pressure."

"If I can do that, I can do it again," he said softly.

Fezler, who finished third in the recent Philadelphia Classic and is seeking his first pro title, missed only two greens and hasn't had a bogey in two rounds.

Wimbledon defectors' in tennis final

LONDON (UPI) — Ilie Nastase and Roger Taylor, the two most important "defectors" from the Wimbledon boycott, reached the finals of the London Grass Courts Championship at Queens Friday.

The Romanian beat Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union 6-8, 9-7, 7-5 and Taylor took advantage of some loose play by Australia's Owen Davidson to win 7-5, 6-3.

The women's singles final today will be between former Wimbledon champion Evonne Goolagong, and Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union.

The Australian defeated Julie Heldman of Houston, Tex., 6-2, 6-0 and Mrs. Morozova eliminated Val Ziegenfuss of San Diego, Calif., 6-2, 6-3.

putts in the 15-18 foot range, holed another from 25-30 feet and reached a par five with a three-wood shot for still another birdie in matching the course record with a front nine 31.

His only birdie on the back nine was on the 230-yard, par three 15th, where he lashed a two iron to within eight feet of the flag.

SOUTHBURY, Conn. (UPI) — Mary Lou Crocker of Louisville, Ky., who never has won a Ladies' Professional Golf Assn. tournament, shot a six-under-par 67 Friday to take the first round lead in the $30,000 Heritage Green Open.

Despite an afternoon rain, 16 golfers in the field of 60 broke par 73. Sue Berning and Kathy Ahern were one stroke off the pace with 68s while Sandra Palmer carded a 69.

BANKAMERICARD AND MASTER CHARGE ACCEPTED

A FEDERAL judge in Atlanta ruled Friday that the one-year suspension levied against golfer Jane Blalock by the Ladies Professional Golf Assn. is invalid.

U.S. district judge Charles A. Moyer Jr. said the suspension, imposed for alleged "unethical conduct," violated federal antitrust laws and that Miss Blalock was entitled to her winnings on the tour during the period of the suspension.

GOALIE Bernie Parent, the first National Hockey League player to jump to the World Hockey Assn., leaped back to the NHL Friday at a substantial cut in pay.

"I took a cut to come here," said Parent after signing a multi-year contract with the Philadelphia Flyers. "New York of the WHA offered me a better contract, but I want to play in Philadelphia."

A FEDERAL jury in Houston awarded driver A.J. Foyt $75,000 Friday in his $1 million libel suit against Time, Inc. and its magazine, Sports Illustrated.

Foyt claimed a story about him in April, 1971 damaged his future earnings by misquoting him.

Lawyers for Time, Inc. said they will appeal the verdict.

THE U.S. Men's college all-star basketball team touring China ran its record to 3-0 Friday night with a 95-75 victory. The U.S. gals were beaten, 74-62.

BRIEFLY: Top-seeded ALEX MAYER of Stanford overcame UCLA's BOB KREISS, 4-6, 7-6, 6-3, Friday in an onsemi-final match of the NCAA tennis tournament at Princeton.

USC's PAUL RAMIREZ will provide the opposition after a 6-4, 6-2 victory over RICK FISHER of Stanford... Chicago White Sox pitcher WILBUR WOOD topped the May balloting for the Hickok Pro Athlete of the year award... Two 100-mile qualifying races will be featured at this year's Cal 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway on Sept. 2. Time trials Aug. 25 and 26 will determine the first row, the rest of the 33-car field being filled by two 100-mile races in the afternoon of Aug. 26... Japanese contestants captured the first two titles of the World Judo championships Friday in Lausanne, Switzerland as four Americans were beaten... World welterweight champion JOSE NAPOLIS is a 5-2 favorite to keep his title tonight against European champion ROGER MENETREY of France at Grenoble.

THE Australian defeated Julie Heldman of Houston, Tex., 6-2, 6-0 and Mrs. Morozova eliminated Val Ziegenfuss of San Diego, Calif., 6-2, 6-3.

Truckle Feature favored 10 seek rich Los Alamitos Derby tonight

Ten of the nation's finest sophomore quarter-horse sprinters will be in the spotlight tonight for the 20th running of the $93,600 Los Alamitos Derby.

Tonight's race, the richest of the Los Alamitos meeting thus far this year, serves as graduation for most of the horses entered.

After the derby, the three-year-olds will have to start challenging older horses if they hope to earn berths in the $50,000 Go Man Go, $100,000 Championship and $25,000 Miss Princess.

Truckle Feature, billed the country's fastest horse following his record-shattering performance in the West Texas Championship at Sunland Park, figures to be the favorite of the weekend crowd although Don Guerro and Al Due will receive plenty of support.

Rounding out the field for the Derby will be Elan Again, Air Cooled, Amber Due, Dusty Parr, Rocky Denuedo, Lady Winsmore and Gray Dancer.

Truckle Feature, a three-year-old son of thoroughbred Truly Truckle, won his division of the Derby Trials in 21.89 seconds but as one trainer pointed out, "he'll get tougher when somebody starts challenging him."

He was an easy length winner of the fourth division of the Trials over the likes of Love Charge and has been listed as the 5-2 morning line favorite for the race.

Robert Mitchum's Don Guerro, a three-year-old colt by War Chik, figures to be no worse than second betting choice of the crowd after his last two impressive wins.

Don Guerro, under the tutelage of trainer Earl K. Holmes, won the $140,000 Golden State Derby in his last start at Bay Meadows and was an easy winner of the second division of last week's Derby Trials in an identical 21.89 seconds.

Oddly enough, improving filly Al Due will carry the top qualifying time of 21.88 into the finals but she figures to go postward as no better than the third choice of the public. The daughter of Alamitos Bar has won only $5,900 in 17 career races going into the finals but she has finished first or second in seven of her last eight starts and she may walk off with the top prize of $51,480.

Elan Again, who flew in from Ruidoso along with Truckle Feature after running third in the $67,300 Ruidoso Derby, was a sharp second behind Don Guerro and was officially timed in 22.01, the fourth top qualifying mark.

Lady Winsmore, the fastest qualifier for the Golden State Derby, won the first division of the Trials but her 22.10 clocking for the 440 yards ranked ninth among the 10 fastest.

Longshot Lincoln's Sure Bet nosed out 4-5 favorite and Bay Meadows Futurity winner Ima On in the $6,000 Jet Deck Stakes Friday night.

Lincoln's Sure Bet, ridden by Ronald Banks, won his maiden effort at Bay Meadows in 18.66 but then failed as the even money choice in his division of the Futurity trials.

Tri Jet, Wing Out favored

Field of nine in Hollywood Bel Air

Tri Jet, a bay colt with a history of success at Hollywood Park, and Wing Out head a field of nine today in the $50,000-added Bel Air Handicap at Hollywood Park.

Fred Hooper's 4-year-old Tri Jet, winner of seven races at the Inglewood track, shares the high weight role at 121 pounds with Wing Out for the 1 1/4-mile turf test.

The race will gross $55,600 if all 10 start. Entries also include Big Spruce, Manitoulin, Kentuckian, Masked, Fair Test, Normandy Gray and D.B. Carm.

Laffit Pincay, the meeting's leading rider, rides Tri Jet, who beat Masked and Kentuckian recently at the Bel Air distance in a swift 1:41.

Wing Out, finished second in two $100,000 turf races at this meeting and triumphed three times last April at Santa Anita.

Big Spruce finished behind Wing Out in the rich Century and Invitational Handicaps.

Trainer Charlie Whittingham went after the $150,000 Hollywood Gold Cup in a big way Friday by entering millionaire Cougar II, last year's winner Quack and Canadian star Kennedy Road for 1 1/4 mile race Sunday.

Cougar II, the only active million-dollar winner in thoroughbred racing will carry high weight of 128 pounds in the field of seven.

Owner Mary N. Jones, apparently irked by Cougar's third-place finish in the Hollywood Invitational, has replaced Bill Shoemaker with Pincay. Shoemaker will ride Kennedy Road and Don Pierce will ride Quack.

Other entered were Royal Owl, 120; Queen's Hustler, 115; Briarite, 113, and El Extranio, 110.

LOS ALAMITOS RACE RESULTS

Fight for survival OLIVARES VS. CHACON

With an engaging smile, flashing eyes and a knuckle punch, Ruben Olivares became yesterday's world champion, but tonight he must fight for his boxing survival.

Olivares faces the latest in Southern California boxing stars, the 21-year-old ex-collegian Bobby Chacon, a street fighter who knows the value of money and how to earn it.

The 26-year-old Mexican, who held the 118-pound title, and the rapidly rising Chacon, are rated even in the betting perhaps somewhat because the fight at the Forum is in the Los Angeles area where Chacon has become a favorite.

"He might have gone over his peak," Bobby says, but he still respects the punching power of the Olivares who says his playboy days are behind him—at least until he campaigns successfully as a featherweight.

Winner of this 12-round contest for the North American 126-pound title is promised a fight for the championship against Ernesto Marcel of Panama, who holds the World Boxing Assn. version of the crown.

Both Chacon and Olivares have agreed to fight Marcel depending on the outcome of tonight's fight. The champion has been guaranteed $60,000 and the challenger could collect nearly as much.

For their meeting this time, each of the little fighters is guaranteed $40,000. For Chacon, it will be the biggest purse in his 19-fight pro career. For Olivares, it will be much less than he received for bantamweight title defenses. Promoter Don Chargin expects close to 18,500 in attendance and $235,000 in receipts.

Olivares takes a 69-3-1 record into the Forum ring and 64 of his victories have been by knockout. Chacon has stopped 17 of his 19 foes, winning two by decision.

Grid season begins tonight

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — The West, blessed with a talented group of players including five from national champion Southern California, rated a touch-down favorite over the East for tonight's 13th annual Coaches All-America football game, which will be shown on Channel 7 at 5:30 p.m. PDT.

East Coach Ralph Shug Jordan of Auburn said: "I hate to put the hat on any coach, but John McKay ought to be favored in this game. He's got some of his own players and then gets to pick from Oklahoma, Texas and Nebraska. I'd say to make the West the favorite would be a step in the right direction."

McKay, the West mentor from Southern California, dodged Jordan's needle and said:

"I've been in a lot of these all-star games and one thing I know for sure is that I never know who's going to win. The team that is the underdog always seems to want to play harder and to try and prove the so-called experts wrong."

McKay is keeping his starting lineup to himself, saying, "Honestly, I probably won't decide anything until Saturday. In an all-star game like this, I don't prefer to pick out anyone ahead of time. It will all depend on how I feel Saturday night."

McKay will choose his starting quarterback from the duo of Dan Fouts of Oregon and Ty Paine of Washington State.

Jordan will have quarterbacks Terry Davis of Alabama and Don Strock of Virginia Tech at the controls. Davis, who ran the triple option successfully at Alabama, will get the starting call.

The standout player for the East in practice has been punter Ray Guy of Southern Mississippi.

"Guy's phenomenal," Jordan raved. "He kicked one 80 yards out here that hit the goalpost."

McKay said the most impressive West player has been flanker Steve Holden of Arizona State.

"I know we've got some pretty good linemen too but it is hard to tell about them since they are usually just standing in one place," McKay said.

Pearsey all-CIF 1-A pick

Three-sport star Les Pearsey of Brethren High has been selected as a first-team pitcher on the CIF 1-A baseball team by the Citizen Savings Athletic Foundation.

Pearsey, who was co-player of the year in six-man football and a first team guard in basketball, compiled a 11-1 pitching record as a junior this spring. He was the 1-A shortstop as a sophomore a year ago.

Pitchers Jim Peterson of Sonora and Bob Good-year of Lutheran were selected players of the year on the 2-A and 1-A level.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Junk junket scheduled

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In some respects the Watergate case is like a car wreck. Other motorists stop to gawk and pretty soon traffic is stalled for miles.

At the moment there is a lot of talk about the need to start traffic moving again. The theme being repeatedly sounded is that government officials should cease being so preoccupied with Watergate and get back to the business at hand.

I am pleased to note that at least one governmental body -- the Commission on Highway Beautification -- is doing just that.

Next month, the eight members of Congress and three presidential appointees who comprise the commission will tear themselves away long enough to spend three days in Alaska studying junked cars.

Other highway beautification problems also will be taken up by the commission. But according to its chairman, Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., the removal of abandoned autos from roadsides is a major concern.

Wright reported that Alaska has exceptional problems collecting junked cars because of its "rugged terrain, vast distances between population centers, and remoteness from scrap consumers."

Apparently, distances in Alaska are so vast your car is likely to wear out before you reach your destination. But if you send a tow truck to haul in the derelict, it is likely to wear out before it gets back. Thus compounding the problem of debris along the right of way.

THIS IS an ideal problem for getting your mind off the Watergate scandal. And certainly well worth sending an 11-man com-

But I have a hunch the solution will be found

Remember the controversial order by the National Highway Safety Administration that air bags be installed in all passenger cars beginning with 1976 models?

In collisions, the bags would inflate upon contact and cushion the impact for the occupants.

Very well. Now suppose the bags were filled with helium rather than the common or garden variety of ozone. Do you see the advantage that would have from a highway beautification standpoint?

Once inflated, the bag would cause a wrecked or abandoned car to float into the air. Then the vehicle would be wafted along by the breeze until it drifted over a population center. There it would be hauled down and carted off to the junk yard.

Aren't you glad you've had this opportunity to talk about something besides Watergate? Don't you wish everybody did?

College days end for Waltons' star

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Thomas, the Emmy-winning star of "The Waltons," returned to work in his television series this week convinced he'll never return to Columbia University to complete his education.

"College is a career these days," he said. "You have to devote all your time and attention to it."

"In high school I could work as an actor on the side and it didn't interfere with my studies. But it's impossible at Columbia. I'd have quit anyhow because I was tired of taking required courses."

Thomas, 22, majored in Chinese culture and still reads on various subjects in China whenever time allows.

RICHARD THOMAS
'College a Career'

from contemporary life. It's those old values which people my age and younger children want to escape into."

Thomas is a scholarly, impeccably mannered young man, highly articulate. Friendly as a puppy, he is marked by few of the egotisms which frequently beset successful young actors.

"ALIENATION is being stressed in movies and television these days," he said. "Our show makes people feel dependent on one another."

"I think the appeal of the show lies in the fact that everyone watching would like to be a member of the Walton family."

"The Waltons have a sense of family honor."

A BEACH OASIS IN A TORRID SUMMER

The dog days are yet to come, but the lazy, play days are here as two children have fun on the beach at the foot of Chestnut Avenue. It beats the pavement scene and frying eggs on the sidewalks of a sweltering city. Perhaps the picture snapped by Tom Shaw, Independent, Press-Telegram staff photographer, will make you feel cool.

With candles of hope Job Daughters convene in L.B.

By KATHIE ESTELLE
Staff Writer

Job's Daughters are lighting little candles of hope to help the world's sick and needy find their way out of the gloom.

One of the 12,000 young delegates attending the Grand Bethel's annual convention, which began Friday in the Long Beach Arena, explained that the goal of the 52-year-old organization is to brighten the lives of people through charitable work.

Mayor Edwin Wade, in welcoming the convention, touched upon the same theme. "Before presenting the key to the city to the group's top statewide officer, Grand Bethel Honored Queen Suzy Palmer, he said. "It seems to be the spirit of the time to attack the establishment. In times like these, it is refreshing for those of us in public office to look upon the youth of America who are attempting to do something."

Doing something is the unofficial motto of the 350,000 members of the worldwide organization. Each year, the Grand Bethel and the local bethels embark upon projects relating to a theme set by the Grand Bethel. Last year's theme was service to others; this year, it is aid to victims of cystic fibrosis.

With that in mind, the young women have gone out to wrap bandages for a hospital or stage a rummage sale to raise money for victims of cystic fibrosis.

Meeting new people was cited by several girls as the reason they joined Job's Daughters. It is also the reason why more than one-third of state's members packed the arena for the weekend.

The big convention kept a local caterer slaving in the kitchen as delegates devoured more than 7,500 boxes of fried chicken.

"We had to start cooking the stuff at 5 a.m.," one tired but cheerful young lady said.

The convention continues through Sunday with election of new officers, a talent show and a recording of all 12,000 young women singing various tunes scheduled.

While the girls are enjoying their new friends and the entertainment, they still insist that the basic reason they're here is to keep that candle lit.

L.B. man takes Rotary position

Don Gordon, a prominent Long Beach insurance broker, Friday night was installed as governor of district 532 of Rotary International at a banquet at the Disneyland Hotel.

Gordon, a resident of Garden Grove and a charter member of the Garden Grove Rotary Club, will serve through 1973-74.

He is president of his insurance brokerage firm of Johns and Gordon Insurance in Long Beach and a director of the Independent Insurance Agents Association and the Independent Businessmen's Association of Long Beach.

Gordon, who previously served his club as president, has held various other officers at the club and district level.

He is a member and former chairman of the

LBSU enrollment drop leveling off

The decline in summer school enrollment at Long Beach State University is leveling off for the first time in three years, LBSU officials said Friday.

Dr. Roderick Peck, dean of summer sessions, said there was only a 3 per cent enrollment drop over last year's first summer session.

Attendance has declined 23 per cent in the previous three years.

There were 8,397 students enrolled in the session, according to preliminary statistics.

One reason for the decline has been a sharp increase in summer session fees. The fees have doubled in recent years and now stand at $27 per unit. "It's true that every time the fees rise, fewer can afford it," Peck said. "But the general decline in the economy and the disenchantment with higher education of many high school graduates has contributed, too."

The summer session is paid for completely by student fees, unlike fall and spring semesters.

Peck said that 40 per cent of the summer session enrollment is now graduate students. Freshmen and sophomores comprise only 10 per cent of the summer college population.

Budget Costs up $730,000

By LARRY LYNCH
Staff Writer

Lakewood's City Council, provided with a new analysis of operating expenditure increases, will continue budget study sessions today.

A public hearing on the proposed $9.9 million fiscal 1973-74 budget, and its probable adoption, is scheduled for the regular council meeting Tuesday.

The new analysis pegs boosts in the operating costs at $730,000 excluding the city's absorption of rubbish billing as a budget item.

Most of the increase — some $500,000 — is attributed to increased contract costs on roadwork and capital improvements. The contractual work is directly related to capital projects (park improvements and landscaping, for example) and street maintenance.

Another $86,000 is tied to the creation of six new staff positions, to the funding of community safety personnel omitted from last year's budget, and the loan of an administrative assistant to the Helpline youth counseling agency.

The total allocation for special planning studies would be reduced from $96,000 this year to $30,000 for the coming year under the staff proposals.

Car window pried by thief for tapes

A burglar who pried the wing window of a car belonging to James Gerald Allman, 241 Grand Ave., while the auto was parked across from his home, took a tape cassette and tapes.

Eye 'scope' stolen

An ophthalmoscope, a device used by physicians in eye examinations and valued at $400, was stolen from the car of Dr. Stanley Carson of Los Angeles, while the car was parked in the 2800 block of Atlantic Ave.

Ship that fired last in Viet home

The destroyer Turner Joy, which was in on the beginning and the end of the Vietnam war, came home to Long Beach Friday.

Turner Joy was with the destroyer Maddox in the Tonkin Gulf on Aug. 4, 1964, when they responded to an asserted attack by North Vietnamese gunboats to launch the war.

Seconds before the January 1973 cease-fire, the Turner Joy's five-inch guns fired the U.S. Navy's last shots of the war.

There are fewer jobs this summer for young people, and this is a challenge to recreation programs, nearly 300 Long Beach Recreation Department leaders were told Friday at their annual pre-summer meeting.

"Fewer jobs for our youth mean less money and more leisure time on their hands," said Mrs. Mary Butler, president of the Recreation Commission.

"It's up to the playground and park leaders to show these youngsters how to play, how to 'use' their leisure in an effective, positive manner," Mrs. Butler said.

Councilman Russell Rubley, a member of the Recreation Commission, greeted the recreation leaders, and noted that the anticipated move of the Recreation Department into the former

Armed Services YMCA facilities on the west beach is "a great step forward."

Alvin D. Hoskin, director of municipal and school recreation, and Robert Van Antwerp, associate director, spoke of the extent of the 1973 summer program being offered to all Long Beach residents.

"This is the largest program ever offered in Long Beach," Van Antwerp said. "We're offering 198 different activities this summer."

Hoskin pointed to the continuing growth of facilities in Long Beach, citing the $1-million improvement of Areas II and III at El Dorado Park East, and improvements at Drake, Admiral Kidd, King and Houghton parks.

Don H. Smith, ad executive, dead at 67

Don H. Smith, a long-time advertising publication executive, died Friday in Memorial Hospital at the age of 67.

A native of Chicago, Mr. Smith came to Long Beach in 1925 and was general manager of the Long Beach Shopping News until 1961. For the past 12 years he was owner and manager of Long Beach Publications Control, a distributing firm for advertising publications.

Surviving are his wife, Olivia M., of the Seal Beach family residence; a son, Kent W. of Long Beach, and a brother, Robert D. of Oregon.

Services will be held Monday at 10:30 a.m. in the chapel of Forest Lawn, Cypress.

Core city community facility work starts

Construction started Friday on a multi-purpose Neighborhood Facilities Center at 1133 Rhea St. which will provide child care, preventive medical services and a variety of community services to residents of Long Beach's central area.

Councilman James H. Wilson, in whose district the center is located, took part in brief groundbreaking ceremonies.

City Manager John R. Mansell said the center is one of three planned for Long Beach. The others will be in West Long Beach and in North Long Beach.

The Central Area Neighborhood Facilities Center will cost $485,600, of which the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development will contribute $344,392. The building was designed by architect Dwight E. Bennett, and will be erected by Coastate Builders.

Construction is scheduled to be completed by mid-February.

The center will be operated by the city. Diagnostic health services to assist in the early detection and prevention of diseases will be provided by the city Health Department, which will staff and conduct clinics and educational programs.

The child-care program will be directed by the Long Beach Unified School District. Office space in the center will be made available, at minimal rent, to various community health and welfare agencies and to neighborhood groups.

Requests for space already have been received from the Long Beach Welfare Rights Organization, State Department of Public Social Services and Long Beach Public Library.

South Coast panel faces lengthy agenda

By KRIS DULANEY
Staff Writer

The South Coast Regional Zone Conservation Commission will consider an agenda of 214 permit applications, including several for construction in the Long Beach area, when it meets at 9:30 a.m. Monday in the Torrance City Hall, 3031 Torrance Blvd.

Though 140 of the items are listed on the consent calendar, 64 permit applications are slated for public hearings. Ten applications, all of which were continued from previous meetings, are scheduled for voting only.

Normally, consent calendar items are passed together on one vote of the commission. However, objecting commissioners may have certain items put over for public hearing and separate vote.

The commission, which was authorized last fall by the passage of Prop. 20, has jurisdiction over all new construction within 1,000 yards of the mean high tide line in Los Angeles and Orange counties.

On Monday, four area developers will seek claims of exemption from the commission on the basis that they had expended large amounts of money on their projects prior to last Nov. 8, the date the Coastal Conservation Act became effective.

Those claims of exemption include:

—William D. Evans' for a 194-unit apartment complex with 11 and 17-story towers, associated parking and recreational facilities at 1746 Ocean Blvd., Long Beach.

—Community Redevelopment Agency of Los Angeles' for the Beacon Street Redevelopment Project, San Pedro.

—Star Kist Foods, Inc.'s for a pressurized water fire protection system and pump house and a can manufacturing building at 400 Buss St., Los Angeles.

—A claim of exemption by the City of Avalon for a wastewater treatment plant near Peppy Beach in unincorporated area of Los Angeles County, Catalina Island.

Ten area developers are scheduled to receive public hearings on their projects, including the City of Long Beach, which has applied for a permit to construct new maintenance facilities to the Harbor District.

Other area projects slated for consideration by the 12-member commission are:

—Vacation of public streets and resubdivision of land parcels into one parcel and two 1-story service buildings at Henry Ford Avenue and Grant Street, Wilmington, by Howard Aphson.

—Construction of a 4-story, 27-unit condominium at 2015 E. Broadway, Long Beach, by Russell Mangum Company.

—Construction of a 6-unit apartment building at 3316 E. Third St., Long Beach, by Future Communities Building Corporation.

—Widen pavement, reconstruct sidewalk, curb, new culvert and traffic signals on Westminster Avenue, Long Beach, by the Los Angeles County Road Department.

—Acidulation process of vegetable oil refining and washwater for oil recovery at 1601 W. Seventh St., Long Beach, by Procter and Gamble Manufacturing Company.

—Construction of an 8-unit condominium at 2334 Palos Verdes Drive West, Verdes Estates, by Lunada Bay Company.

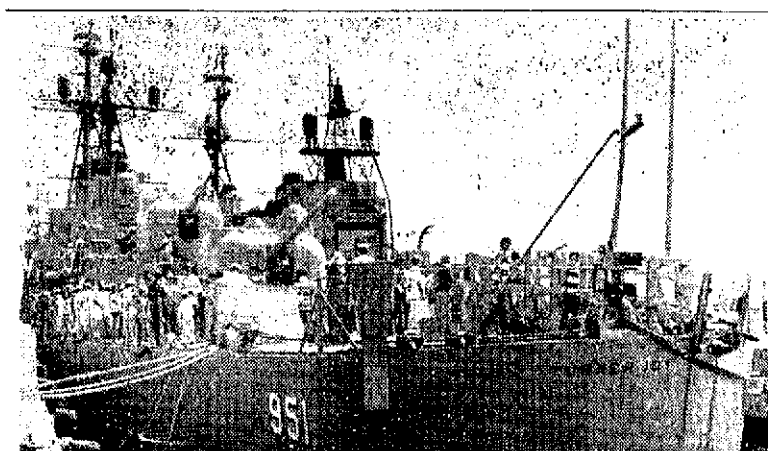

—Construction of Cabrillo Marine Museum on Stephen White Drive, Cabrillo Beach, by the City of Los Angeles.

—Construction of 48, 2-story townhouses and recreation center at Cemetery Road, Country Club Road and Falls Canyon Road, Avalon, by Sol Vista Homes, Inc.

—Construction of 75, 2-story condominium units and recreation center at Wrigley Road and Beacon Street, Avalon, by Sol Vista Homes, Inc.

—Construction of nine single-family dwellings on Coastline Drive between Driftwood Avenue and Silver Shoals Avenue, Seal Beach, by Sunnyglen Construction Company, Inc.

A commission spokesman said, however, that because of the lengthy agenda, some scheduled items could possibly be held over for public hearing until the group's next meeting.

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Introduces a sustained adventure in the finer arts of great living -- in spiritual evolution and in simple joys. Today's natives are serious types, frequently possessing musical talents, and often prefer older companions.

Aries (March 21-April 19): With grace and dignity, be visible in your normal share of the community's customs. Let yesterday be bygone.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Time for meditation is the most important factor this crowded weekend. Romantic episodes blossom when least expected.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): There's much to learn, many ways of being helpful to the people who count in your life.

Cancer (June 21-July 21): Being charming is natural if you're healthy and doing the appropriate things for your age.

Leo (July 22-Aug. 22): Leave strangers to their own devices, choose home life and familiar companions. Travel requires extra cash.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Usually reliable advice misses its mark -- you're better off following your intuition. Keep careful money records.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): There's little to do beyond the usual this Sunday, so be sure you do it well, with the right word properly placed.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You have a special influence here and there, even though you're making no great effort to throw your weight around.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The lighter side of life is at hand -- laugh with loved ones, and leave business plans for tomorrow.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Early hours may seem dull, but continue in style, then see the mood of the day warm into cheerful fun.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Insist that others make their own decisions. Yours attract little support; they're best confined to matters you can deal with alone.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Whatever tactics are needed to exit center stage, use them once you've managed your share of the chores and amenities.

Diabetes cure seen in 5 years; rats under test

CHICAGO (UPI) — The head of a medical research team said Thursday a possible cure for diabetes may be ready for use on humans within five years.

The treatment, which involves the transplanting of insulin-secreting pancreas cells into the bodies of diabetics, is now being tested on laboratory rats, he said.

Dr. Arnold Lazarow, professor and chief of the University of Minnesota's department of anatomy, will discuss the team's findings in a lecture today at a meeting of the American Diabetes Society in Chicago.

LAZAROW, who heads the researchers, said he is hopeful the diabetic patient would recover ability to manufacture and release insulin after the transplant.

"At least five more years of research may be necessary before the treatment can be evaluated for humans," Lazarow said.

He said because the rats under test were of a highly inbred strain, researchers have not yet been able to solve the problems of rejection, encountered almost always in the transplanting of organs.

"Once that has been solved human trials will begin," Lazarow said.

Diabetics lack sufficient insulin to make use of glucose, a sugar into which carbohydrates are converted during digestion.

A build-up of unused glucose in the blood, called hyperglycemia is the chief symptom of diabetes.

AN ESTIMATED four million Americans are known to have diabetes and it is believed that another six million may have undiagnosed cases of diabetes, Lazarow said.

Lazarow said a long study will be necessary to determine if the transplant treatment also will halt serious complications such as blindness, kidney failure and blood vessel disorders that often accompany diabetes.

The complications are not controlled by insulin injections and may be caused by a factor unrelated to insulin production, Lazarow said.

House conservatives riddle legal aid bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A series of House votes riddling a bill to provide legal services for the poor left the future of the Office of Economic Opportunity in doubt Friday.

The bill, which would create an independent corporation to provide the legal services, was loaded with amendments by a coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats.

The antipoverty agency, scheduled for extinction by the administration, was given a reprieve Thursday by the House Appropriations Committee, which approved funds to keep it operating another year.

The bill providing the OEO money is due to be voted on by the House next week, and the antipoverty agency's opponents hope to knock it out.

"IT WILL BE a massacre," said Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., who, as manager of the legal services bill felt the strength of the coalition Thursday. In a session that lasted almost until midnight, the House adopted 24 amendments to the bill, most of them limiting the scope of the program and the activities of its lawyers.

The attorneys would be prohibited from repre-sending clients in school desegregation or abortion cases, sharply limited in their own political activities, even off-duty, and barred from any lobbying activities before legislative bodies.

The House also eliminated from the legal services program the use of research centers that specialize in various aspects of poverty law and assist antipoverty lawyers in the field.

Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., calling the centers "the cutting edge of social change in the country," succeeded in knocking them out of the bill by a vote of 245-166.

IN THE FINAL stages of the long debate nearly every amendment offered was adopted, including one to bar legal services under the program to "indigent, abandoned Watergate defendants."

Although some of its supporters turned against it at the end, the bill was passed 276-95 and sent to the Senate.

The outcome was a bitter blow to members of the House Education and Labor Committee, who have been working for three years to pass legislation setting up a Legal Services Corporation. President Nixon vetoed a bill in 1971, and the House and Senate failed to agree on another bill last year.

Medicare, acupuncture on agenda AMA meeting to be busy

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American Medical Association opens its 122nd annual convention today with the largest volume of business to transact in its history.

About 14,131,000 physicians and 17,000 other medical personnel from all over the country converged on New York for the six-day meeting that features scientific and educational reports and exhibits in addition to sessions for conducting the official business of the 206,000-member organization.

The AMA's 244-member House of Delegates will hear 50 committee reports and consider 160 resolutions. So heavy is the legislative schedule that the AMA's Planning Council has recommended separate meetings for the House of Delegates and the Scientific Assembly no earlier than 1977. The House meets semi-annually.

The issue that is expected to engender more debate than any other before the House is the Professional Standards Review Organization (PSRO) program, which was created by Congress last year. It will consist of review committees made up by physicians to evaluate care given in hospitals to Medicare and Medicaid patients.

The AMA had been dubious of a review program geared largely to cost control, but it has been active in developing rules and regulations and helping the program get started since its creation. Many AMA delegates, however, favor single state, umbrella-type PSRO organizations rather than the small, regional organizations in large and heavily populated states now being planned.

Other topics of debate will be abortion, which the AMA opposes; federal control of compulsory national health service programs, which the AMA opposes; health maintenance organizations, which the organization feels is unproven as an applicable solution to problems of health care delivery and costs; and the right of persons to die a dignified death.

The Connecticut delegation to the convention will introduce a resolution containing a model statement by which patients can express their wish not to be kept alive by artificial means or heroic measures. The statement specifies the patient is not asking that his life "be directly taken, but that my dying not be unreasonably prolonged."

Acupuncture, the controversial Chinese anesthetic technique, will be the subject of discussion at a general session of the convention and it is expected to be its best attended event. The event will shed light on the potential role of acupuncture in U.S. medical practice.

Some 250 scientific exhibits were shown, including five demonstrations related to patient care. A glimpse into the future was provided by an IBM computer system which will make it possible for a patient to feed his medical history into electronic files that will be immediately available to a physician, even in a remote location.

House OKs $2.27 billion nature bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee Friday recommended major increases in spending on natural resources, saying the administration has set the wrong priorities.

"It is time to stop and ponder what a nation without trees, water and natural beauty could be," the committee said in a report accompanying a $2.27 billion appropriation bill.

The administration failed to budget funds "adequate to meet the pressing needs facing this country in the management of its natural and human resources," the committee said.

The committee recommended budget increases for Indian services and welfare, land and water conservation, forest conservation, coal and mineral research and fish and wildlife programs.

The increases were offset by cuts in allotments for the arts and humanities, the Smithsonian Institution, the National Park Service and other activities.

The bill, scheduled for House debate next week, allots $4.9 million less than the President requested. The funds are earmarked for use by the Interior Department in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

House OKs $19 billion HUD bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After turning back new efforts to increase, the House Friday approved a veto-threatened $19 billion appropriations bill swollen nearly $500 million over President Nixon's budget requests.

The big money bill to fund the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the space program and veterans benefits was passed 316 to 21 and sent to the Senate where new efforts to boost spending for projects such as urban renewal were expected.

The House Appropriations Committee had provided an increase of $682.5 million more than Nixon requested for urban renewal, model cities, rehabilitation loans and water and sewer grants. It cut back, however, on his requests for continued research on the effects of supersonic flight and development funds for a space shuttle ship, bringing the net increase over his budget to $461 million.
